Augustus F. Goodwin Killed by Horse

DILLINGER SLAYER NAMED

Today

At Last They Got Him Money Did It, as Usual Air Wisdom, and Nonsense New Coins for Austria

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

It took 15 federal agents, all expert gunmen, to "get" Dillinger. And they got him by surprise, thanks to a woman's "tip that he was to be in a certain theater," a tip supposed to have been well paid for. It was no "detective work." Dillinger was killed as he had killed others, without a chance of escape, like a trapped coyote, and now he knows, if he knows anything, that as a profession "crime does not pay."

Like other conspicuous bandits, Dillinger was rather stupid, and decidedly conceited, a small brain, with a big opinion of himself.

He has the "asymetrical" face of the typical criminal, one eye higher than the other, a face badly formed. His death was inevitable, once the national government took an interest in him, and offered large cash rewards.

The reward system seems to produce results. There would always be somebody ready to sacrifice Dillinger's life for $5000, just as he was ready to kill anybody for less than that.

Dillinger was "an Indiana farmboy," born right in this glorious country, not one of those "undesirable aliens" supposed to be responsible for all our woes.

He was jailed and should have been kept jailed, but a parole board let him out to "help his old father on the Indiana farm."

Thirteen Dillinger murders followed that stupid parole.

The movie that Dillinger saw, appropriately, was "Manhattan Melodrama," showing New York gamblers and racketeers. As is usual with criminals, the dead man did not lack self-approval. "I guess," said he, "my only bad habit is robbing banks. I smoke very little and don't drink much."

Henceforth, as regards this world, his conduct will be even more nearly perfect.

The War Department's special aviation committee, says the army should have 2320 planes, with corresponding increases in flying men. It also says there should NOT be one department controlling all air forces, which is pitiful idiocy.

Mr. Baker must remember what happened when he was secretary of war and the flying machines of this country sent to Europe were a joke among nations, our flying men compelled to borrow from France and England planes that would really fly.

However, the big men in the army and navy are not fliers, and feel that they should have their little separate flying units to play with.

Colonel Lindbergh recommends airplane engines of 1500 horsepower and Captain Rickenbacker, the outstanding flier of the United States, our greatest "ace" in the big war, recommends planes that will develop 500 miles an hour speed. Both suggestions are good and both have been made repeatedly for years past by General William Mitchell, head of our air force in the big war.

With so many attacks on religion in Germany, Russia, Spain, and other countries, it will encourage the devout to

PET SADDLE HORSE KILLS GOODWIN

Groom Fails in Trying to Save Employer at Hamilton

Augustus F. Goodwin, society sportsman and chairman of the board of directors of the First National Stores, was fatally injured by a horse in the stable yard of "Brackenside," the Goodwin estate at Hamilton, today.

He was thrown to the ground when the horse he had picked for his morning ride reared. The horse fell on him.

RESCUE ATTEMPT FAILS

Larry Mills, the Goodwin groom, attempted to control the horse and was forced to jump out of his way for safety. He carried the injured man to the house.

Dr. John D. Cocoran of Hamilton and Drs. Albert E. Parkhurst and Peer Johnson, both of Beverly, were called.

"Blackmail," the horse which killed his master, was a qualified hunter. He hunted at Myopia and had been a consistent winner in horse shows along the North Shore and in South Carolina.

HORSE INJURED

The horse, after falling on Goodwin, rolled over and was injured.

Mrs. Goodwin and Miss Frances Goodwin, who were in the house and were with Mr. Goodwin when he died, 20 minutes after the accident, were prostrated with grief.

Business associates and the entire Boston social set were also greatly shocked.

Assistance of coast guard, navy wireless and Maine police was sought to reach Gordon C. Prince of Hamilton, who is cruising Maine waters aboard his yacht "Northern Light." He is one of several close friends the family wishes to notify.

For many years Mr. Goodwin had been a noted horseman. He maintained stables at Elm Court, Aiken, S. C., where members of his family enjoyed the sport during the winter months. He was a leading figure in the society horse shows here.

He was keenly interested in steeplechases. Three years ago one

RUM CLEANUP STARTED IN SOUTH END

Permits of Two Places May Be Revoked in Drive by Police

Boston police and investigators for the State Alcoholic Beverages Commission are engaged in a drive to rid the South End of disreputable drinking places, it was revealed today.

The cleanup drive was revealed with the apearance before the Boston Licensing Commission of police and ABC agents, who demanded suspension of two South End licenses. Decision will be made later.

SECRET PROBE

It was learned that secret investigation has been going on in that section of the city for three weeks, following receipt of complaints from clergymen and other residents.

These complaints referred in part to alleged actions of women drinkers.

The Boston drive was revealed shortly after information had leaked out of government circles that the Coast Guard was sweeping into action in New England waters against ships smuggling bootleg alcohol.

WOMEN PROTESTED

The two drinking establishments named today by authorities before the License Board were the Columbus-Italian Political Club, Northampton street and the Washington Lunch, on Washington street about 300 feet from the Cathedral.

Investigators testified that they observed young women leaving the Washington Lunch "extremely drunk."

CALLED HANGOUT

It was described by the investigators as a general hangout for drunks. They further testified of seeing young white girls mixing with negroes.

At the Columbus-Italian Political Club testimony claimed that the club bartenders were serving customers after 1 a. m. One girl, present at the club on the night of July 1st, had become so intoxicated that she was lying across her escort's lap, it was said.

Etta Natelsky, bystander at the Dillinger shooting in Chicago, is shown in a Chicago hospital, being treated by Drs. Edmund Pisarski and Irving Slott for a bullet wound. A stray slug, hurtled at the erstwhile Public Enemy No. 1, ricoheted off the pavement and struck her in the leg as she stood near the Biograph Theater, from which Dillinger walked to his death. Terror Rides 300 Mad Horses in Flames

By DAVE WILSON

Rockingham Park, July 24—A race carded by the gods and handicapped by fear was run today in the early morning darkness with the glare of flames on the stretch.

Three hundred horses with a single jockey: Terror up.

The mad stampede of terror-ridden thoroughbreds in the night was a sight such as few have ever witnessed. And one doesn't hanker to see it again.

GHOSTLY RACE AND MAD

Fire crazes horses, and horses went mad as, one by one, they were loosed from their flaming stalls and turned out with a slap of a singed hand on hot flanks to run and run and run in the darkness, out on the track and infield, crashing against one another and

Boston Navy Yard Jobs Pledged by Roosevelt

The U. S. Navy Department plans to have something under construction at Boston Navy Yard all the time, it was revealed today at the Navy Yard by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Henry L. Roosevelt during an inspection tour. He said:

"This year's naval program calls for building of six submarines, 12 destroyers and two leaders. After Jan. 1, as required by treaty conditions, three light and one heavy cruisers have been planned for thus far for 1935.

"How much of this work will be allocated to Boston Navy Yard, I cannot say, inasmuch as bids for the 1935 construction

U. S. AGENT COWLEY DID JOB, SAYS LAIT

Other Dillinger Stories on Pages 2, 6 and 7

By JACK LAIT

International News Service Staff Correspondent
Copyright, 1934, by International News Service

Chicago, July 24—The man who has the deepest notch in his gun in the world is Samuel A. Cowley. He is the man who killed John Dillinger. Cowley is first assistant to Melvin Purvis, chief of the United States bureau of the Department of Justice here.

Agents of the department are traditionally instructed that they must have no individual identities. But no departmental regulations are big enough to obscure in anonymity the man who sent three bullets through the world's most notorious bad man.

MUST HAVE RECORDS

I stood beside Cowley last night in the morgue, beside the body of the man whom he had so well killed. Cowley, dressed in somber black despite the blistering heat, gazed down upon the clump of clay he had delivered in the name of the law, pulled at a smelly cigar, and watched the internes go through the routine of identifying as John Dillinger the man he had killed, who I knew was John Dillinger.

I got in the morgue through a series of breaks. With me was a Chicago policeman who happened to be under rather dramatic obligations to me. My credentials read New York, although that very morgue had been part of my reportorial beat for many years.

Dillinger's body lay before me. Spot news. Details were secondary. I was in that basement room for two hours. That was long enough for secondary details to become primary. Dillinger was dead. The next question was, who killed him?

PROVES IT'S DILLINGER

My police friend had not been as impressed or as idle as I had been. It was none of his business. He was a fingerprint expert, and despite the attempt at obliteration, he had Dillinger's deadly marks beyond possible conjectures on the whorls, loops and deltas in 15 minutes after we got there. I had interviewed Dillinger in the Crown Point jail and didn't need his affirmation—one look, the body was still pink and warm, and I knew it was Dillinger.

That was easy. The whole world would soon know it was Dillinger. But the bureau of identification must perfect its records, and my friend, a policeman whose star was pinned right through his heart was going to hand in a complete and competent report. That was okay. He had his work to do and I had my mine.

I didn't have to file my story for a couple of hours. He had to make his report immediately, and it was one word—"yes."

He could have left then and gone back to his girl in whose room he had gotten the quick tip that a man was shot, probably Dillinger

NEIGHBOR DOGS POISONED

It was the dog-house for Braintree's pet dogs today, following the discovery that three dogs belonging to neighbors were victims of strychnine mysteriously administered.

Two collies and a little black terrier belonging respectively to Mrs. Alton B. Briggs, 218 Washington street; Henry Murray 20 Cavanaugh street, and William Farquharson, 19 Cavanaugh street, returned from the customary unaccompanied morning stroll today minus their usual friskiness. Suddenly the Briggs' dog dropped dead and the other two developed convulsions. Dr. J. H. Emerson, veterinary, who was summoned, diagnosed their condition as due to strychnine poisoning. Braintree police are investigating.

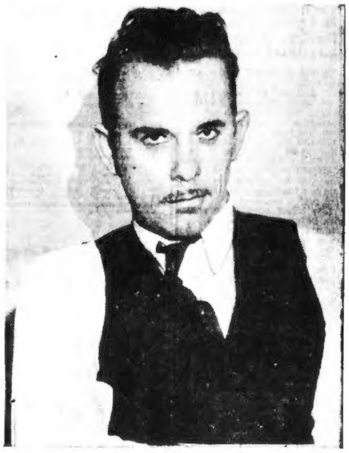
DILLINGER'S FATHER, SISTERS MOURN FOR SLAIN BANDIT

John Dillinger, Sr., is in Chicago today to claim the body of his son, the slain gunman. Although he is ill, the father insisted on making the trip, driving with the undertaker he engaged to get the body.

Frances Dillinger, 13, is the "baby" sister of the notorious John. She is shown here in a happier mood. Today she is mourning her brother's death just as any other sister would mourn the death of a brother she loved.

Mrs. Doris Hancock, Dillinger's older sister, collapsed when she heard the news of his death. After Dillinger's mother died, Doris was "mother" to John, while he lived at home. The funeral is to be in her home.



And here is John Dillinger, himself, for whom the Dillinger family is mourning. His death is being hailed as a victory instead of a tragedy throughout the country. (Pictures from International News Photograph Service.)

FREED BOY, 11, KILLS PAL

By Universal Service

Norwalk, Conn., July 24—Discharged from a reformatory only three weeks ago, 11-year-old Joseph Gall shot and killed Russell Spells, 14, in a feud over an apple tree behind the two-family house in which both lived. Young Gall was promptly sent back to the reformatory.

Death for Eight Smashes Spy Ring

Moscow, July 24 (AP)—The Soviet government has smashed what it calls a pro-Japanese spy ring by death sentences to eight and long prison terms to 15. A series of train wrecks and sabotage in a locomotive shop were laid to the alleged conspirators.

NRA Shows Speed

Washington, July 24 (AP)—NRA, in a burst of speed, has fitted 144 businesses to codes within two weeks. Even the fly swatter and nose-rings-for-hogs industries have been taken care of in the rush.

1200 SEIZED IN AUSTRIAN PLOT

By Associated Press

Vienna, July 24—Twelve hundred Socialists were arrested today in connection with an alleged plot to overthrow the Dollfuss government. It is the biggest roundup since the bloody February Civil War.

Political police found evidence which they said indicated Socialists, Communists and Nazis had merged into a common front for a huge campaign of terror against the Fascist government.

Family Bodyguard Now Rides With Dillinger

By Associated Press

Mooresville, Ind., July 24—The best bodyguard that John Dillinger ever had prepared to bring him home today—for burial.

In death, he rode not with desperadoes armed with machine-guns, but with a sorrowing father and a loyal half-brother.

The return today was in contrast to his last visit—on April 8—when he ran a gauntlet of officers to spend a few hurried hours with his family.

A high powered automobile, carrying a small arsenal, carried him over highways and into his father's house that time. A hearse moving ponderously, was his conveyance today.

PRIVATE RITES

The townspeople were eager to look on the body of America's notorious outlaw, who was shot down in Chicago last Sunday night by federal agents, just after he left a motion picture show.

Mrs. Audrey Hancock, older sister of Dillinger, whose word is law in the family, wants the funeral as private as possible. Services will be held at her home in Maywood near here, tomorrow afternoon, unless something develops to change the plans.

If the sister has her way, the townspeople, many of them sympathetic to the Dillinger family, will not have a chance to look at the dead man.

From Indianapolis, and the surrounding countryside, however, thousands of persons are waiting a chance to look on the features of the man they feared in life. City and state police prepared to control large crowds.

The Dillinger clan—from all around the countryside—had gathered today to receive the farmer boy, who in 14 months became the nation's most desperate bank bandit. The meeting place was at the Hancock bungalow on the outskirts of Maywood.

WOODEN CASKET

Dillinger's funeral will be devoid of the glitter of the burial of the gangsters of the prohibition area. He will be placed in an inexpensive, wooden casket. Burial will be conducted as simply as the public will permit.

Over protest of some persons whose own dead lie in Crown Hill cemetery, the body will rest beside that of the outlaw's mother in Indianapolis.

Dazed Father Waits Dillinger's Body

By Associated Press

Chicago, July 24—Patiently, John Dillinger, Sr., waited through last night for the body of his son.

Bowed with sorrow and nearly seventy years of toil, the Hoosier farmer was dazedly acting out the final chapter of a sordid tale of crime.

The body of his son, the outlaw, who brought notoriety to the stooped farmer and peaceful Mooresville, Ind., resident, lay bullet-torn on a county morgue slab. Permission of federal authorities was awaited to start Dillinger on his last ride.

In his slow drawl father Dillinger did not condone or blame his errant son's deeds; his end was probably better than capture, he said:

"John would have wanted it that way. It was probably better he was shot than arrested again. But he got a tough break as a boy when he was sentenced to from ten to twenty years for his first offense."

Crowds greeted the father as he arrived at the undertaking parlors. Each new detail of the sensational killing whetted the insatiable mob's appetite for more Dilinger glimpses.

The battered hearse was almost torn to pieces by memento seekers. It had to be locked away.

Worker Killed in Swift River Crash

Gilbertville, July 24—Jess Bradford, 29, was killed here when a load of concrete at the Colebrook-Swift River tunnel tipped over on him, crushing him. Andrew Bullock, foreman at the shaft, suffered a broken leg.

Both men saw the loaded car of concrete start to tip and rushed to balance it, but were caught as it plugged. Fire broke out following the accident, causing a loss of more than $5000.

DILLINGER PALS MOURN DEATH

By Universal Service

Columbus, O., July 24—From cells in death row at Ohio Penitentiary, two former accomplices today mourned John Dillinger.

They are Harry Pierpont and Charles Makley, sentenced to death for killing Sheriff Jess Sarber while liberating Dillinger from the Lima, O., jail last October.

Makley said:

"It's too bad he wasn't taken alive for Johnny might have told who got him out of the Crown Point Jail."

Pierpont interpolated:

"They got him out of Crown Point just 17 minutes before he was to have given a deposition that would have cleared us. He would have told who got him out.

"It isn't our place to tell. I've never ratted on anyone yet and won't begin now."

Pierpont insisted "someone in the governor's office at Indianapolis but not Governor McNutt" was responsible for the Crown Point escape.

Pierpont denied Dillinger figured in the recent South Bend, Ind., bank robbery, saying, "no one as smart as Johnny would rob a bank Saturday afternoon after cash is locked up."

LANGER GAINS OUSTER POINT

By Universal Service

Bismarck, N. D., July 24—Governor William Langer, ousted from office by a state supreme court decree which found him guilty of a feloney, gained strength when the State's Attorney General P. O. Sathre, informally ruled that the legislature might meet legally at any time to consider impeachment questions.

Lieutenant-Governor Ole Olson who replaced Langer in the executive offices, held his political lines however, by continuing to fire Langer appointees and appoint his own forces.

The Senate had only 18 members present and lacked a quorum. The House had 53 members and also lacked a quorum, so both bodies adjourned to rally strength so they might legally bring impeachment proceedings against Olson under the opinion of the attorney general.

Fairbanks Faces New Ashley Charge

London, July 24 (INS)—With Douglas Fairbanks back in England for further work at Elstreet on his film, "Don Juan," Lord Ashley's solicitors began today making arrangements for serving papers on him containing new charges against both Fairbanks and Lady Ashley which Lord Ashley added in supplemental proceedings for divorce. Service will be made through Fairbanks' solicitors. Fairbanks resumed his social life in London apparently unperturbed by the additional charges.

Reid Postpones Hop

Wasaga Beach, Ont., July 24—(AP)—Leonard Reid and J. R. Ayling, British fliers, because of sweeping winds today, postponed until tomorrow the take-off on a projected 6300-mile flight to Bagdad, Iraq, in quest of the long-distance flying record.

Borah Flays Monopoly as Enemy of New Deal

By Associated Press

St. Anthony, Idaho, July 24—Senator William E. Borah called for destruction of monopoly today, denouncing it as "the most insidious and most successful enemy of the new deal." The Idaho senator's address to the annual Pioneer Day audience bristled with epigrams—"Monopolies are economic Hitlers"; "The effect of monopoly is to decrease, if not to destroy, purchasing power"; 'Monopoly has no more rights to exist than any other form of depradation."

"When I discuss the question of monopoly," he said, "I am accused of attacking the New Deal by critics who are unwilling or unable to meet the question presented.

"Do these people contend that when a person attacks monopoly he attacks the New Deal?" he asked.

"The most insidious and most successful enemy of the New Deal, according to its announced purposes, is this power of vast combinations to fix prices and to rake off all the gains which may come to the farmers, the producers or the laborers.

"The defenders of monopoly will not be permitted to hide behind the New Deal. They will have to fight in the open!"

"Figures show conclusively that while there has been some rise in prices of farm commodities, in every instance where that has tken place, the rise in the prices of things which the farmer has to buy has far exceeded the rise in the price of his commodities. The farmer can never win out on that basis.

"Some things have been done designed to help the producer and I am in full sympathy with those things. But what I object to, is leaving in our industrial setup this uncontrolled power, which literally maniplates markets and fixes prices, making it virtually impossible for the producer even to realize anything from the Government's efforts, or from his own efforts."

JEWS TO FIGHT GERMAN GOODS

By International News Service

London, July 24—An international drive of tremendous magnitude to boycott German chemicals, medicines and drugs is to be launched August 1, by the Jewish Medical and Dental Association, it was learned by International News Service today.

This association, with headquarters at Woburn House, London, has prepared "black lists," which include all chemicals, patent medicines and standardized drugs made by German concerns or manufactured from raw products turned out by the large chemical companies of Germany.

RUM OFFICERS' CAR LOOTED

Baggage, containing a pint of high grade liquor and other articles, of a total value of $80, was stolen today from an automobile used by two inspectors of the Massachusetts alcoholic beverage commission and parked on Columbus avenue near Arlington street.

Inspector Dennis J. O'Connor of 93 Orchard street, Springfield, owner of the car, and Inspector Harold Whitemore of Sterling street, Wesdale, reported the theft to Warren avenue police station.

The pint of liquor, it is presumed, had been obtained by the inspectors to be used as evidence in their investigation of liquor establishments.

The thieves broke open the rear window of the machine and dragged their loot through.

After months of jockeying, the battle over the $4,000,000 will of Nellie P. Carter, whose lavish tips at the Ritz-Carlton are still legend, has been settled out of court—but the settlement terms probably never will be known.

ALL SATISFIED

None of the principals would comment today on the settlement, except to say that they are "eminently satisfied" and that the case is closed.

Under the will originally, Miss Mary MacFarlane, stenographer for a Boston lawyer who occasionally did some work for Miss Carter, was bequeathed $150,000 for "being nice" to the wealthy spinster.

Miss MacFarlane's employer, Attorney Arthur Wellman of Topsfield, was bequeathed $500,000; his wife, Mrs. Jennie Wellman, $100,000, and their son, Sargent Wellman, another $100,000.

Lieutenant James Trimble Brown, former aide to Major-General Fox Conner, commandant of the First Corps Area, also received $100,000 under the will, and in a court hearing came in for excoriation by former District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell as a man, who allegedly had lived on Miss Carter's largesse.

Another beneficiary under the will was Mrs. Elizabeth Cunningham Riley, proprietor of "Driscoll," the exclusive modiste shop in Boylston street, who was left that business by Mrs. Mary A. Dolan. Under the Carter will, Mrs. Riley received $10,000.

ALL TIGHT-LIPPED

What any of these principals received under the settlement is not known, so tight-lipped are all concerned in the settlement.

Suit to break the will was brought by ten cousins and the case was due to go to trial in September. At a preliminary hearing, charges were made that Miss Carter, daughter of an oil man, was of unsound mind when she made the will and had been influenced by a circle of close friends.

It was charged that she had been persuaded to give away all but $50,000 of her vast fortune to other than members of her family and to put in a clause that any relative who contested the will was to be cut off without a penny.

Judge Arthur Dolan of probate court, who had been appealed to by the cousins for a ruling on jury issues to break the will, turned down the plea and the Supreme Court upheld his decision. The suit then was set for trial in Superior Court, but the settlement voids this.

COUSINS GAIN

It is understood that under the settlement the cousins receive a larger share than originally allotted them in the will. The cousins are Mrs. Emily L. Barnes and Adele Merriam Coverly of Cambridge, Mrs. Mabel Carter Phillips of Beverly, Everett M. Carter, Julia Banes Carter and Mary Dilly Wheeler of Leominster, George Grant Carter, William Warren Davis and Samuel Andrew Davis of Haverhill and Hattie G. Carter of New York.

At one time Miss Carter is said to have been worth $10,000,000 and her $20 tips to bellboys and hotel attaches at the Ritz-Carlton made her a favored guest.

When she died her estate was estimated at $3,000,000, but since that time it is understood to have increased to $4,000,000.

ALLEN MORALS TRIAL NEAR END

By Universal Service

Los Angeles, July 24—With the completion of testimony, the prosecution began its arguments for the conviction of Dave Allen, manager of the Central Casting Bureau, and Gloria Marsh, screen extra, on morals charges growing out of an alleged "wild party" they are accused of participating in with June De Long.

After telling the eight men and four women jurors, who frequently blushed during the long trial, that he would skip the lurid details of the testimony, Prosecutor Arthur Veitch branded the defense as "the creation of a scenario writer" and declared the claim that Allen and Miss Marsh were "victims of a frame-up" is "absurd."

The maximum penalty on the charge upon which Allen, who controls the film work of 17,000 men and women extra and "bit" players, is 15 years in prison.

Miss Marsh, testifying briefly, admitted she refused to testify before the county grand jury when it investigated the case and did so upon the advice of her counsel and on the grounds that she might incriminate herself.

Main Blast Throws Swimmers in Bay

Youngsters, swimming off the Dover street bridge, were treated to an unexpected dive, when the water-main on which they were sitting, burst.

Thrown into the South Bay channel by force of the water, they clambered back, unhurt, onto the bridge, and reveled in the 50 foot geyser.

Ellis Apppointed Works Director

Richard H. Ellis, water commissioner of Newton, was today appointed Newton's director of public works by Mayor Sinclair Weeks.

The appointment was submitted to the Board of Aldermen last night and confirmed. Ellis will begin his duties August 1 at an annual salary of $6000.

'Satisfied' in Will Peace

Miss Mary MacFarlane, stenographer, and Attorney Arthur Wellman of Topsfield, who have settled out of court the Nellie P. Carter will fight. Wellman was bequeathed $500,000 originally and Miss MacFarlane $150,000. What they received under the settlement will remain forever a mystery, and the only comment of the principals after the case was closed was that we are "eminently satisfied." Heart of City Beats to Save Sick Mother From Death

By Associated Press

New York, N. Y., July 24—Mrs. Margaret Berger lies ill under a tent in the yard of the Brooklyn Women's hospital. She might have died, but for the warm heart of Brooklyn.

Mrs. Berger, immediately after becoming the mother of a 10-pound girl, May 29, was found to be suffering from a serious kidney ailment, necessitating an operation. She failed to rally as doctors had hoped, and her strength waned. Fresh air was an essential if she were to survive; fresh air and quiet. She was too ill to be moved daily to the hospital porch.

Someone suggested a tent be pitched in the back yard, and it was done. Carefully she was placed there. Of course, there would be noise—children playing and pianos and mechanical music machine pouring brassy tunes from open windows. Yet it was the only hope.

Two six-story apartment buildings stand close by. From the windows, housewives, working to the music of their radios or with one ear policing a child's piano practice, saw the tent and wondered. Somebody made inquiry. The word spread that under the little tent lay a woman, near death, whose only hope of life lay in quiet and fresh air.

Radios and pianos were hushed. Children no longer screamed and shouted at play, and when their cries began they were ended quickly by the admonition:

"Remember the poor, sick lady in the tent."

For 10 days now there has been no party in either apartment building. No radio has been turned on, no piano touched. These apartment house dwellers don't know Margaret Berger, yet each day they send flowers.

Mrs. Berger is much better. Within a week or two she will be able to leave her tent and go home well on the way to recovery. The heart of the city, too often libeled, is seeing to that.

Farley Sees U. S. Gains; Britten Finds 'Disgust'

By International News Service

Reno, Nev., July 24—James A Farley, Postmaster General and Democratic National chairman, says he "finds the political situation splendid" on the nation-wide speechmaking and handshaking tour he is making. He left for Portland, Ore., to speak there today. He said here:

"Roosevelt is stronger than he was when elected President. He is stronger than his own party. His popularity is amazing.

James A. Farley

"As far as the Republicans are concerned they are easy. They have nothing to offer. All you have to say is do you want to go back to 1932? the answer everywhere is No."

"Business is picking up. This is shown by the increase in post-office receipts in the smaller cities. With Congress adjourned business men have no fear of any legislation that might be enacted. We are certain to see a general upward trend in business. I do not hear any squawking anywhere."

By Universal Service

Washington, July 24—With the "exception of a few monopolies," business generally is thoroughly disgusted with the recovery program, Representative Britten (R.) of Illinois, said on his return from a tour of the Middle West, Britten added:

Fred W. Britten

"If the administration can offer nothing better as a substitute for unemployment than the breadline, it will be sunk in many major districts in the fall elections. The recovery program has failed to stimulate business sufficiently to care for the excessive demands of NRA."

Britten declared Chicago was in many ways an exception, having been "saved by the Century of Progress Exposition." He said:

"Throughout the nation, however, unemployment has not been relieved and there has been no pickup except among the few monopolistic industries which avidly relish the opportunities to grasp everything within sight which the recovery program affords them."

BYRD'S RESCUE PREVENTED BY BLIZZARD

By Associated Press

Little America, Antarctica, July 24—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's skill and sagacity were all that he could count on today in some of the Antarctic's most bitter weather.

An attempt to push a tractor party through to his solitary weather observation outpost was a failure, and he was without radio facilities.

After battling near-blizzard conditions since Friday, the tractor party turned back yesterday.

It had reached only half-way to south.

BYRD RADIO SILENT

Another expedition presumably will be sent for Admiral Byrd when weather conditions improve.

No word has been heard from the expedition leader for several days. His main radio set has been out of order and in his most recent message, relayed on a set which he cranked by hand, he reported he had "a bad arm." He did not indicate his condition otherwise.

Dr. Thomas C. Poulter, in charge of the tractor party which was to leave two observers at the advance base and return with Admiral Byrd, reported by radio yesterday it had decided to turn back.

Most of the flags marking the trail are buried in drifts, he advised, and a blizzard appeared to be setting in.

SNOW BURIES TRAIL

The party was expected to have great difficulty in returning to camp, as snow drifts apparently have all but obliterated the trail. Dangerous crevases lie along the route.

The group encountered some of the coldest weather of the year, with the mercury dropping to 71 degrees below zero at one time.

Men were obliged to go ahead on skiis to guard against crevases. Distances were more than doubled by the zigzag course necessary to find the flags.

Pastor, Son Held in Deacon Killing

Moulton, Ala., July 24 (AP)—The Rev. L. P. Royer, arrested in his Baptist Church here as he read his Bible, was held in jail today with his son, William, on charges of murder in the ambushing of Frank Pickens, 81-year-old deacon of the church.

Paul Pickens, a son of the deacon, swore out the warrants after his father's body had been found by a neighbor. Pickens had been shot while riding a mule from his farm to Moulton. Sheriff Ayers said he had been told Royer and his son were seen leaving the vicinity of the slaying.

Most Beautiful Back

Girls who want to "back" their way into beauty should take this advice from Harriette Robinson (above) of Sterling, Illinois. Stand and sit correctly, don't slump, wear shoes with low heels, breathe deeply and let the sun play on your back. Harriette should know, for she is the winner of a back contest sponsored by the State Chiropractors Society of Illinois. She was given 86 out of a possible 100 points by a jury of artists and chiropractors, and won following her own advice. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

NATION'S HEAT DEATH TOLL REACHES 535

By the Associated Press

The death toll mounted to 535 today as intense heat blazed down on the nation smashing records for intensity and duration.

The blanket of heat showed signs of lessening at the edges, but in the Midwest, where its devastating effects are greatest, no relief was sighted.

An unofficial 120 degrees temperature was recorded at Muscatine, Ia., and above 100-degree readings were general throughout the Central Western states.

RELIEF IN EAST

The Atlantic seaboard was cooling, hope for relief was held out fo rthe Southern coastal states, and a high pressure area, now over Western Canada, promised relief for the Great Lakes territory.

In Chicago, packers and officials, deluged with record shipments of cattle because of the drought, appealed to government officials to stay the flood of starving animals being bought with federal funds from detitute farmers.

Each day added hundreds of thousands of dollars of damage to crops and livestock.

25 DIE IN CHICAGO

Missouri, at the center of the heat wave, saw 156 perish, and Illinois was second with 120. In Chicago alone, where yesterday the airport thermometer rose to 109 degrees, 25 have died from the heat.

The heat toll for the present wave follows: Missouri, 156; Illinois, 126; Nebraska, 54; Ohio, 45; Iowa, 40; Minnesota, 25; Indiana, 19; Pennsylvania, 13; Michigan, 13; Texas, 11; Kentucky, 12; Oklahoma, 7; Tennessee, 6; Wisconsin, 4, and Georgia 1. The total in the 15 states is 535.

BUS DEATH TOLL REACHES 18

By Associated Press

Ossining, N. Y., July 24—Another name was added today to the list of dead in Sunday's bus accident, the body of the eighteenth victim being recovered from the Hudson river at the foot of the hill. Twenty-one other persons were still confined to hospitals with burns, suffered when the bus, loaded with 40 members of a Brooklyn Democratic Young People's League went out of control and hurtled over a 30-foot embankment at the New York Central railroad tracks.

The body recovered was thought to be that of William Murray, Sr., of 15 Cornelia street, Brooklyn. As nearly as authorities could determine, the bus contained three children, ten women and around 27 men and boys.

Meanwhile, the State of New York prepared for a complete investigation of the tragic accident. As investigation progressed, authorities were more convinced that the bus, ten years old, had faulty brakes and should not have been sent on the road at all.

J. W. HAMILTON, BISHOP, DIES

Bishop John J. Hamilton of Washington, D. C., dean of the board of bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church and chancellor emeritus of American University, died in a Boston hospital today. He was 90 years old.

Bishop Hamilton was stricken at his summer home in Marshfield several days ago. He was formerly resident bishop in Massachusetts and was the oldest living trustee of Boston University, where he was in the first graduating class.

Bishop Hamilton was born in Weston, Va., educated at Mt. Union College, Alliance, O., and at Wesleyan, in addition to Boston University, and held pastorates in Newport, O., Maplewood, Mass., and Somerville and Boston.

He is survived by his daughter, Mrs. Helene Hamilton Stafford of Seattle, Wash., and a son, Dr. Gordon L. Hamilton of San Francisco. Mrs. Stafford said funeral services would be held in St. Mark's Church, Brookline.

First 'Air' Train to Fly Next Monday

New York, July 24 (AP)—The first aerial "mail train" is scheduled to fly from New York to Washington next Monday, dropping off "cars" at Philadelphia, Baltimore and the White House.

A biplane and three gliders will compose the aerial train, under the arrangements being completed by Jack O'Meara, 1933 glider champion. Stanley Smith is to cut loose his glider over Philadelphia, and Dr. B. E. Franklin of Michigan University will do the same above Baltimore. O'Meara hopes to land the third on the White House lawn, while John Riggs, pilot of the plane, continues to Bolling Field.

Promoter Jimmy Meade today issued general orders to all motorcycle race riders that speeds above 70 miles an hour no longer will be permitted at the Revere cycledrome.

Maine Refuses to Give Up Fugitive

Augusta, Me., July 24—Acting on a ruling by Attorney General Clyde R. Chapman that violation of probation is not extraditable in Maine, Governor Louis J. Brann denied a request for the return to Ossipee, N. H., of 16-year-old Robert Moore, now with friends at South Portland.

HENRY JACQUES SEEKS DIVORCE

Henry F. Jacques, wealthy Brookline real estate man, who two years ago figured in a separate support hearing in Dedham court, has filed suit for divorce in Reno, Nev., against his wife, Mrs. Louise P. Jacques, it was revealed today.

At the hearing two years ago, Mrs. Jacques testified that she became suspicious of her husband's attentions to Mrs. Ruth M. Anthony of 208 Fuller street, Brookline. She named Mrs. Anthony defendant in a $50,000 alienation suit.

Mrs. Jacques was awarded $100 a month support and custody of their child.

ICE REFRIGERATION

1934 STYLE

THERE'S a lot of difference between the old fashioned "ice box" and this new, modern ice refrigerator. You'll notice the up-to-the-minute design. But that is just part of the story. It's what is inside the refrigerator that really counts. With pure Boston Ice there is an even temperature and a constant flow of circulating air. Impurities and food odors are absorbed by the melting ice and carried down the drain. This active circulation of fresh, "washed" air preserves your foods and lets them retain their natural flavor and juices. Don't think of buying, until after you've seen this new Boston Refrigerator—1934 style. Telephone Kenmore 8160.

MOTHER KILLER TRIAL BEGUN

By Universal Service

Los Angeles, July 24—Arguments were begun here in the first portion of the murder-insanity trial of Louis R. Payne, 21.

In the event the jury finds Payne guilty of killing his mother and brother, Mrs. Carrie Payne, 45, and Robert, 15, with a camp axe while they slept, they will then hear testimony as to his sanity.

Through the testimony of Virginia Rall, a fellow student at a business college, that Payne carried a pistol, the prosecution sought to show that he was considering the crime two months before the murders.

Mary Johnson said the youth appeared sane when he took her to a theater a few hours before his mother and brother were slain.

PUBLIC IS TO BE FILM CENSOR

By International News Service

New York, July 24 — Spurning suggestions of government censorship as a means of ridding motion pictures of sex angles and indecency, New York's Non-Sectarian Clean Film Committee today completed plans for a house-to-house canvass designed to band 3,000,000 citizens in a public "censorship board."

The Rev. Joseph A. McCaffrey, chairman of the non-sectarian group, announced the canvass will cover Westchester county as well as the five boroughs. Men, women and children will be asked to sign pledges to boycott indecent films.

As the motion picture campaign progresses, the committee intends to take definite stand also against filth in burlesque shows, it was stated. The screen is holding first attention, however.

Father McCaffrey, while definitely opposed to government censorship, accused the office of Will Hays, motion picture "Czar," of having failed to keep pledges to clean house from within.

Foot Bath Ends in Jail Term

If a man wants to wash his tired feet in the family wash boiler, that's a strictly private affair. But if a man throws a boiler at his wife, when she objects to the foot washing, then it's a court matter.

Agrippine Cassacio of Bristow street, East Saugus, knew this today, as he started the first of 30 days in the Saugus jail. Judge William E. Ludden sentenced him following testimony of his wife, that Agrippine had thrown not only the boiler at her, but everything else movable in their kitchen.

2000 LAUNDRY WORKERS JOIN IN STRIKE

By International News Service

Minneapolis, Minn., July 24—Labor war clouds hovered over Minneapolis again today when inside workers in laundries and cleaning plants went on strike at 5 a. m. They numbered 2000.

Despite a telegram from William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, the workers decided to join in a sympathy walkout with the 7000 union truck drivers.

A. F. OF L. DISAPPROVES

Green informed N. E. Carle, head of the laundry workers, that the A. F. of L. disapproved of sympathy strikes and that the charter of the workers would be revoked.

The striking truck drivers insist on representing the "inside workers," an issue which is paramount in the present trucking strike.

Carle, however, issued a bitter attack on Mayor A. G. Bainbridge and Police Chief Michael Johannes, declaring:

"Not a shirt will be ironed, not a garment cleaned, until these hirelings of the capitalist class are removed."

Members of the employers' committee, including some 166 firms who employ truck drivers, failed to pass finally upon the suggestion made by the Rev. Francis J. Haas and E. H. Dunnigan, federal mediators on the scene, for a settlement of the troubles, which have stopped the delivery of produce commission firms and slowed up all other trucking activities.

No official statement was issued as to the plan.

TROOPS STILL OUT

Minneapolis was still filled with troops today, more than 4000 militiamen being on duty. Gov. Floyd Olson and Mayor Bainbridge conferred on the question of convoying trucks by police escort when requested, and indications were that such plans will be continued.

Trucks yesterday were convoyed—some 22 of them during the day—by as many as five police squad cars.

Livestock Workers in Chicago Strike

By International News Service

Chicago, July 24—Eight hundred members of the live stock handlers' union, local 517, went on strike today at the union stock yards as 75,000 head of cattle, many of which had been shipped in from the drought-ridden areas, crowded the pens.

Pickets were posted at every gate to turn away members reporting for the day's work.

O. T. Henkle, general manager of the yards, said he would bring in outside help to care for the feeding and watering of stock. Sixty uniformed police and three squads of plain clothes men were assigned to the yards.

The union charged that its employers failed to abide by a wage and working conditions agreement made on June 1 by Federal Judge Philip Sullivan, mediator in the strike of last November.

B. U. Students to See Phone Plant

Boston University summer session students will visit the New England Telephone Exchange at Bowdoin square this afternoon under the leadership of Miss Grace Eyrick. Professor Mervin Bailey will lead another group through the Boston Art Museum.

On Thursday afternoon, Miss Eyrick will visit the Atheneum Press. On the same afternoon Professor Albert Morris of the sociology department will conduct a group to the Morgan Memorial, social service center.

Open Exams Set on $2700 P. O. Job

Open competitive examination for the position of assistant custodian of the new Boston postoffice building, has been announced by the United States Civil Service Commission. The job carries a salary of $2700 per year, minus a 5 per cent economy reduction and deduction of 3½ per cent toward a retirement annuity.

House Burns Near Waltham Hospitals

Fire in a house near the Middlesex County Sanatorium, and the Metropolitan State Hospital, Waltham, swamped the hospitals and fire departments with hundreds of calls, inquiring for the safety of the patients.

The flames were visible over a wide area, but attendants at the two institutions reported that the patients were not disturbed. Damage to the building was set at $1500.

5-Cent Tunnel Plea Sent to Mansfield

A resolution favoring a five cent bus trip, through the Sumner tunnel, was referred to Mayor Mansfield today after passage by the city council.

Under this fare, no transfer privileges would be allowed. Edward Dana, general manager of the Boston Elevated said that the plan might prove feasible, if buses are charged only 25 cents for each trip through the tunnel.

THE immediate and enthusiastic acceptance of the new Firestone Century Progress Tire started a tremendous wave of buying that is keeping the Firestone factories running twenty-four hours a day to meet this huge demand.

We knew that car owners would replace their thin-worn, dangerous tires if they could get what they wanted in a tire at the price they wanted to pay. We found the answer through ten million visitors to the Firestone Factory at the World's Fair last year. We asked them—"What do you value most in a tire?"—and their answer was—"Give us Blowout Protection, Non-Skid Safety, and Long Wear, at a moderate price." Equip your car with these new Firestone Century Progress Tires, with the massive flat tread, deep-cut non-skid, broad husky shoulders, and Gum-Dipped cords. Tire prices probably never again will be as low as they are today. At these unusually low prices for first grade tires, we make it easy for you to buy not only one tire, but a complete set.

Process Taxes in State Give U. S. $21,580,533

Processing taxes collected in Massachusetts during the fiscal year ended June 30, according to figures made public by the commissioner of internal revenue, totalled $21,580,533.33, it was announced at the Federal building today.

The total for the entire country is $371,422,885.64.

In Massachusetts the taxes imposed in the following order yielded up to June these amounts:

Commodities.	Effective date	Collections
Wheat,	July 9, 1933	$480,715.62
Cotton,	August 1, 1933	19,196,160.42
Field corn,	November 5, 1933	$23,570.46
Hogs,	November 5, 1933	1,493,954.59
Tobacco,	October 1, 1933	70,111.07
Jute,	December 1, 1933	315,947.40
Sugar,	June 8, 1934	13.01
Total		$21,580,635.33

It was stated at the bureau of internal revenue that the collections from a number of these taxes exceeded the official estimates which were made for budget purposes during the latter part of 1933.

COTTON TAX INCREASES

The bureau pointed out that the estimate of the amount to be collected during 1934 from the cotton processing tax was $128,000,000. The collections actually amounted to more than $144,0000000.

In order to enforce effectively collection of the various processing taxes, collectors of internal revenue have employed approximately 700 field deputy collectors, it was signed. These duties are also required to make canvasses of the territory to which they are assigned. These deuties are also required to examine any questionable processing tax returns.

MAY SELL PROPERTY

Where the tax found to be due has not been paid, the deputies get authority to seize and sell at public auction the property of the delinquent taxpayers or to levy upon and seize bank accounts of the delinquents.

In regard to the methods used in enforcing collection of the tax, it was explained that the processing taxes become automatically due and payable without notice by the collector on the dates fixed by law and regulations. The great maority of the taxpayers pay the tax voluntarily on or before the due date, it was said.

Penalty provisions of Section 3184 of the Revised Statutes are applicable to the processing taxes. When a person liable to processing tax becomes delinquent in meeting his obligations to the government he is subect to a 5 per cent penalty and delinquency interest of one per cent per month.

Such a taxpayer must, therefore, ultimately pay a much larger amount to the government than he would have been required to pay had he met his obligations on or before the due date.

This Paper May Bring Riches

ATTIC FIND MAY NET $20,000

Forgotten in an attic trunk for 20 years, a time worn copy of the Declaration of Independence may bring a small fortune to Mrs. Laura Whynot Harlow, of 107 Porter street, Melrose.

If the signature of Button Gwinnett, 39th signer of the immortal document, proves genuine, she will be able to command a price of more than $20,000 from autograph collectors.

Killed by Horse

of his favorite horses, Landboy, maintained a clean sweep in the Masters of Fox Hounds Steeplechase, bringing thrilling victory to the Goodwin silks.

At the Goodwin home today it was said that Mr. Goodwin rode every morning and had on numerous occasions ridden the horse which threw him and caused his death.

The Goodwin stables included many jumpers and some of the best hunters in the country.

That he met his death in the sport which he loved so well was a tragic coincidence.

He was a director of the State Street Trust company.

In addition to his wife and daughter, he is survived by a stepson, Charles S. Barrell, Jr., and a stepdaughter, Mrs. Betty Barrell Woods.

Mr. Goodwin was one of the prime movers in the attempt to bring horse racing to Massachusetts.

He had pledged financial support to the proposed track in which Bay State society horsemen have evinced considerable interest in the hope that a race track comparable to Belmont Park could be erected in this state.

Preparations for a week-end party for Miss Frances Goodwin that were in progress were immediately cancelled.

Mr. Goodwin was about 58 years old. He was a member of numerous society associations and was vice-president and chairman of the board of stewards of the Eastern Horse Club, of which he had previously been president.

He had membership in the Algonquin Club, the Norfolk Hunt, the Exchange Club, the New Riding Club, the Union Club, the Myopia Hunt Club, Brookline Country Club, the Eastern Yacht Club and the Society of Colonial Wars.

Immunity Given $50 Check Thief

If the thief who stole a purse containing $50 from Mrs. Josephine Fuller of 187 Highland street, Roxbury, will return the contents, the owner will take no police action.

Mrs. Fuller, in making this announcement, explained that $37.50 of the money belonged to an inmate of a home, for whom she just cashed a government check for that amount.

$25 FOR TIP ON TRAIN CRASH

By the NEWS TIP EDITOR

The first prize of $25 for the best news tip of last week today was mailed to A. S. Anderson, of 204 I street, South Boston. Last Thursday he flashed word to the City Editor of the Boston Evening American of the grade crossing accident at Monserrat on the North Shore. Two persons were killed and three others were badly injured.

Anderson not only had presence of mind enough to commandeer an auto and rush the victims to Beverly Hospital, but also to realize the news value of the occurence. As a result, the Boston Evening American had a complete story 15 minutes after the accident happened.

Second prize—a check for $10—went to a Brockton woman, whose name is being withheld, for her telephone tip about the fire that destroyed several buildings at the Brockton Fair Grounds last Wednesday.

BRIDGE FIRE WINS

S. T. Helvitz, of 19 Downer avenue, Dorchester, gets the third prize of $5 for his tip on the three-alarm fire that closed the Summer street bridge last Friday evening.

Awarded $1 each for their alertness in calling Liberty 4000 and asking for the News Tip Editor when they saw news hapen, were:

Sara Gaff, of Garfield avenue, Revere, who saw two persons burned in a Revere fire.

Jack Brown, 161 Howard avenue, Roxbury, who saw a body recovered at North End Park.

Henry Silverman, 787 Morton street, Dorchester, who saw a man run down by a train in back of the Boston Arena.

Margaret McMullen, 32 Magnolia street, Roxbury, who reported that a woman was found dead.

The person whose name is being withheld on request who reported a boy's death at the Charlestown Boys' Club.

Frank O'Brien, of 225 Washington street, Somerville, for his call Friday about the break of a water main in Union Square, Somerville, and the ensuing flood.

Edward Dalton, 118 Marginal street, East Boston, for informing the American of a parrot's escape.

Ben Segal, of 3 Washington street, for news of the fall of a live wire in Haymarket square.

A person whose name is withheld on request for reporting a West End automobile accident.

All of which should remind you that you, too, might make some extra money—as much as $25—by telephoning a news tip to the Boston Evening American. If you see an accident, a fire, a crime—call the News Tip Editor at Liberty 4000. And remember it's speed that pays. Get your facts in as quickly as you can.

SEC. ROOSEVELT HONORED

will not be opened until Aug. 15.

"We are all for a treaty navy, this administration and the Navy Department stand for it. We are short of destroyers and submarines principally.

"The plan is to have something under construction at the Boston Navy Yard all the while."

White uniformed officers and a company of marines stood at attention outside the administration building as the Assistant Secretary, a fifth cousin of President Roosevelt and third cousin o fthe late President Theodore Roosevelt, arrived and was given a salute of 17 guns.

He was formally greeted by Captain H. E. Cook, acting commandant of teh yard in the absence of Rear Admiral Henry H. Hough, who is on leave, and by Captain Jesse B. Gay, acting commandant of the First Naval District.

The assistant secretary was then escorted through the yard on a tour of inspection which included the new destroyers, Commodore McDonough and the Monaghan, now building in drydocks 1 and 2; the destroyer Farragut, which was being hauled up on the marine railway, and the U. S. S. frigate Constitution, "Old Ironsides."

After the tour, Roosevelt had luncheon with Captain Cook in the acting commandant's home and then left, to another salute of 17 guns, for the Fore River shipyards in Quincy for anothehr inspection.

The assistant secretary came to Boston from Bath, Me., and Portsmouth, N. H., and tonight will leave for his summer home at Skaneateles, N. Y.

SCORES IN SONG CONTEST

Boston's budding composers are burning midnight oil in an effort to win fame and cash prizes offered by the Boston Evening American. The editor already has received scores of compositions, now in the hands of Phil Spitalny, as sole judge.

Although very busy with his daily stage appearance at Loew's Orpheum, Spitalny is devoting attention to these compositions. He hopes there will be many more before the closing time Wednesday midnight.

This contest calls for the best words and music in simple manuscript form. No orchestration is needed and no accompanying letter. Any class of song is acceptable.

Mr. Spitalny will play the winning selection on his program Thursday evening. There also is the first prize award of $10. The next best composition will bring its writer $5, third and fourth winners $2.50 and the following 15, two guest tickets to Loew's Orpheum.

Send all mail to the Boston American Song Editor, 5 Winthrop square, Boston. Tomorrow is the last day.

Cambridge Church Left $2500 Trust

St. Peter's Episcopal church of Cambridge was remembered in the will of Miss Velma M. Morse of Magazine street, Cambridge, with a bequest of $2500 in trust. Sums of $500 were left to the women's auxiliary of the church, and the women's aid society of the Cambridge hospital.

Tax on Americans in Paris Reduced

Paris, July 24 (INS)—American residents of Paris are the beneficiaries of a decree published today which reduces their assessment for taxation from seven times their annual rental to five times the rental. Other provisions reduced the amount on which Americans must pay income taxes by 30 per cent.

300 FIRE-MAD RACE HORSES SET RECORD

the fences and racing out across the [illegible] country roads.

Eyes bulging, jaws flecked with foam, they ran as terror plied the whip. Their hoofs thundered on the dry turf of infield and track as they raced the far turn and the back stretch, dark shadows rushing by, hardly seen.

It seemed as if the ghosts of all the horses that ever raced were running out there beyond the burning stables.

If there was a winner of that race it was Oral. Oral had been entered in the first race today and in grading him against the field I had been led to believe he was overmatched.

"In a tough spot I figured but, it seems I didn't know.

For it was Oral that gave the first alarm of fire shortly before midnight and aroused George Davis in the burning stable with a shrill whinny and a stamping of his plates. And it was Davis who aroused the others so the horses were loosed to run.

Oral was the first out and he led the stampede around the track but in the darkness of the far turn he crashed the fence and had to be destroyed.

LONE MOURNER TRAILS

The same fate was Waydon's. When they found Waydone about dawn, lying near the fence, his leg broken, his stable mate, Hard Timber, was standing over him. And when they shot Waydone and carted his body away, Hard Timber followed.

All of the four horses that were burned to death had been freed from the flaming stables only to dash back again, crazed.

In the stampede many of the thoroughbreds went miles from the track. Running riderless from the scene they were sighted as far away as Canobie Lake by motorists attracted by the reflection of the flames against the sky.

Triple Probe in Race Fire; Hunt Incendiary

Rockingham Park, July 24—A triple investigation of the disastrous stable fire at midnight was under way as "racing at Rockingham" resumed today with a number of the 300 stampeded thoroughbreds still being sought about the countryside.

Possible incendiarism was one angle being probed. Another was the availability of only three hydrants and low water pressure for the use of the fire departments which, with the aid of bucket brigades of track followers, prevented the flames from wiping out barns housing about $1,000,000 worth of horse flesh.

LOSS MAY TOP $100,000

Fire killed six valuavle horses, stampeded 30 others and caused injury to a score of stable hands, it was definitely determined. Two stables were destroyed.

The loss was set by track officials at $35,000 and Lou Smith, owner, said it might run as high as $100,000. He pointed out that an undetermined number of horses had not yet been rounded up and that injuries to many turned loose and caught in the stampede would probably require their destruction.

Much personal property of trainers, jockeys, stablemen and helpers was destroyed and some of the damage to the horses will not be apparent for several days.

DEATH SCRATCHES TWO

With two of the entries "scratched" by death, the day's card of seven races was scheduled to be run through "as usual" and 100 men were given $10-a-day jobs cleaning up the debris.

Because no cause of the fire was apparent, search was begun for a firebug—perhaps a disgruntled race follower, one of the scores of hangers-on.

The thoroughbreds burned were Old Depot, owned by Mrs. C. L. White of South Middleboro; Vote, owned by Miss Mildred White of Jamaica Plain, and Arrowswift and Little Stokes, owned by R. T. Flippen. Oral, owned by Mrs. T. J. Ward, and Waydone, owned by the Genessee Stable, were shot after suffering injury.

Stables B and H, quartering 104 horses, were destroyed by flames. Twenty-one men and2 boys were sleeping in these stables when the fire broke out. Many had narrow escapes and most of them were burned as they worked courageously and swiftly turning the terror-stricken horses loose.

Horses were turned out of three other nearby stables as the flames threatened to spread.

Quartered in the stables swept by fire were the racing string of R. T. Flippen, J. L. Roberts, B. E. Chapman, L. Haymager, C. H. Robinson, W. R. Flemming and Mrs. Helen T. Parker.

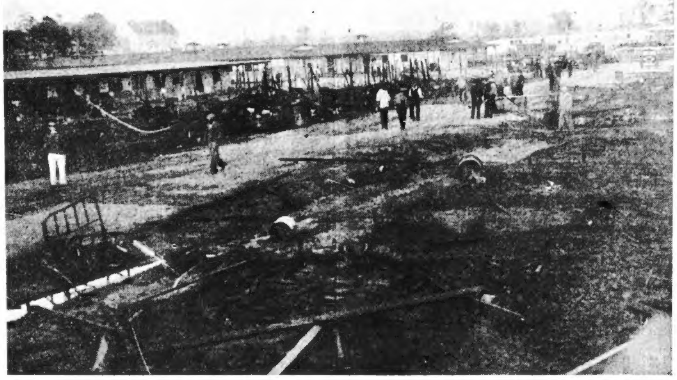
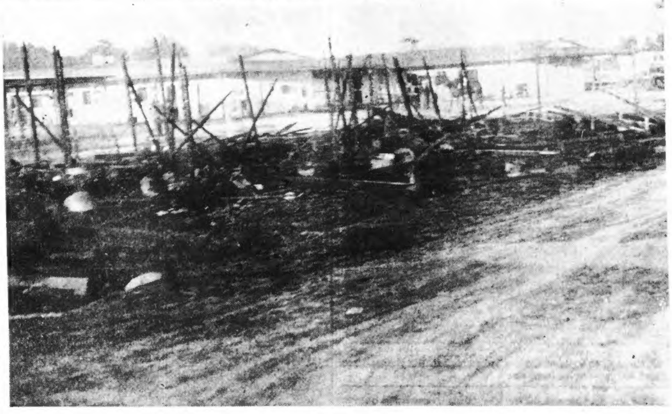
Some of the horses turned out o run terrorized were reported seen as far away from the track as Canobie Lake. Motorists speeding to the fire passed many foam-flecked horses dashing along the highways. Among the horses missing on the first check were the $20,000 stake horse, Crack Flier, and his stablemate, Morway, of the W. L. Gallagher stables.

Little Stokes and Oral were entered in the races today. They and Old Depot and Vote were valued at about $2500 each, Arrowswift at $3000.

Cooling Embers Tell Tale of Race Track Fire



Grooms and trainers are shown above as they searched through the ruins of one of the stables destroyed by fire at Rockingham Park, Salem, N. H., early this morning. The fire took the lives of six racing thoroughbreds and caused damage estimated at $35,000. Other horses may be killed. Three hundred loosed, stampeded.



All that's left of the two Rockingham race stables after fire had done its damage is shown in the above picture. The fire that broke out early today saw two stables destroyed. The blaze almost ruined the final week of racing at the Rockingham course. (Pictures by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

BUY AMERICAN, CURLEY URGES

Springfield, July 24—Buying of American made goods was urged today by former Mayor James M. Curley of Boston in an address before the International Association of Clothing Designers.

The former mayor, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, pointed out the danger to the nation through invasion of cheaply made foreign goodrs. He said:

"We must either destroy the fetish of preference for imports, or be confronted with a continuance of unemployment in America and a continuance of conditions under which Americans, through unemployment, will be able to purchase only the barest of necessities.

"he craze for imported goods has disappeared in Great Britain and the demand for British-made goods is everywhere in evidence there. To this may be ascribed the reduction in the ranks of British unemployed and unprecedented prosperity that obtains there.

" Arecent investigation as to one of the important contributory causes to the improvement in industry and trade conditions in Great Britain discloses the fact that 90 per cent of all goods on sale in chain stores in Great Britain are of British manufacture, whereas four years ago, German, Japanese, Czechoslovakian and American goods represented 90 per cent of the goods on sale in these establishments."

Navy Balloon Down Among the Posies

Plainfield, N. J., July 24 (AP)—A U. S. navy free observation balloon with a crew of five officers made an easy landing today in the back yard of a house here. The only damage was to flowerbeds and gardens. The balloon, one of three sent out last night from the navy air station at Lakehurst on training cruises to study air currents, came down by design, members of its crew said, because the air currents were carrying it away from its home port. Being a free balloon it could not be steered.

6 MILLION GIVEN IN FARM LOANS

Springfield, July 24—Loans totaling $6,250,000 have been made so far by the 30 production credit associations organized early this year in the first Farm Credit Administration district, it was reported at the first general conference of the district, held here. The district includes New England and New York.

Aroostook County, Me., had the largest loan total, $2,300,000, while the Long Island, N. Y., association was second with $310,000 and the Hartford, Conn., association was third with $306,500.

E. H. Thomson, general agent of the Farm Credit Association of Springfield, said that the system of furnishing short-term working capital to farmers is proving to be one of the most valuable and far-reaching credit services ever established.

JACK LAIT NAMES U. S. AGENT WHO KILLED DILLINGER

SAM COWLEY'S GUN CARRIES DEEPEST NOTCH AFTER TRAP

By JACK LAIT

—and he should beat it—to the morgue.

But I was a reporter in Chicago for many years. And he was my friend. His assignment was cleaned up. Mine wasn't. I stood there, fascinated like a small-town boob on his first obituary. But he was a hard-boiled guy—well, not so very. He walked around and presently he sidled over to me and he said:

"You see that guy with the black suit on and the cigar? He's a government dick, and he's going to be promoted."

That didn't particularly interest me. I knew a $125-a-month government dick who turned up a secretary to the President of the United States. So I asked how that could possibly affect my life. And he pulled down the left corner of his mouth (very much like Dillinger did when I interviewed him at the Crown Point jail) and he said:

"That's the guy that croaked Dillinger!"

I had known him for many years. He had never given me a wrong steer. Melvin Purvis and his Washington chief, J. Edgar Hoover, may think it policy to issue a formidable official denial. Nevertheless, Samuel A. Cowley not only killed John Dillinger, but put all the three bullets that went through him through him.

I attended the inquest, a hollow formality. But no inquest was ever as hollow as this one. The deputy coroner, in all the deputy majesty of his deputy might, inquired who had performed this homicide. He was told that a government agent, duly authorized, had done it.

DEPUTY "TAKES IT"

He bristled up and demanded to know who had fired the slugs which had ended the life of a human being, Dillinger or no Dillinger, a human being who had come to his end with violence in Cook County. And he was promptly answered. The deceased had come by his premature end at the hands of a duly authorized agent of the United States Department of Justice. Take it or leave it. He took it.

I was looking into the face of Samuel A. Cowley. I was sorry that he, being an agent of the Department of Justice, which is larded with politics, couldn't stand up like the man he is and say:

"I killed the rat. It was my job and I did it."

The deputy coroner asked to see the gun that had killed Dillinger. That was an inspiration—for a deputy coroner. I had thought of it the night before. My first thought was that Purvis, who had the first chance, had exercised the opportunity and done it imself.

SEES PURVIS' GUN

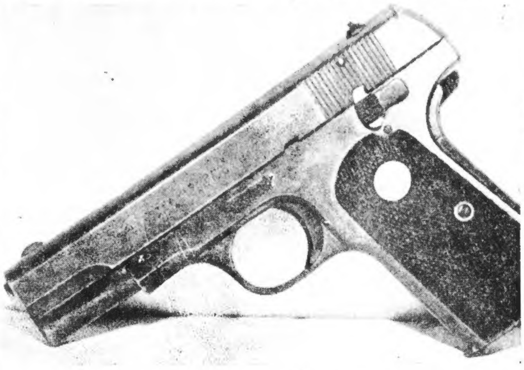
The sun was rising over Lake Michigan when I got my first crack at Purvis, and I accused (or flattered) him of having killed Dillinger. Purvis doesn't say much, ever, but he doesn't lie. I don't ask much, but I don't believe anybody. So I said, "Let me see your gun." He produced it. Purvis is a hot government agent, he turns in results, but he isn't as a man who knows gunmen would know, a natural gunman. He produced his gun. It had not been fired. I doubt if it has ever been fired.

Dillinger's gun lay on the desk. It had not been fired. In truth, that safety catch was locked like the gun of a suburban householder who buys a weapon in the nearest hardware store and prays that he will never have to use it.

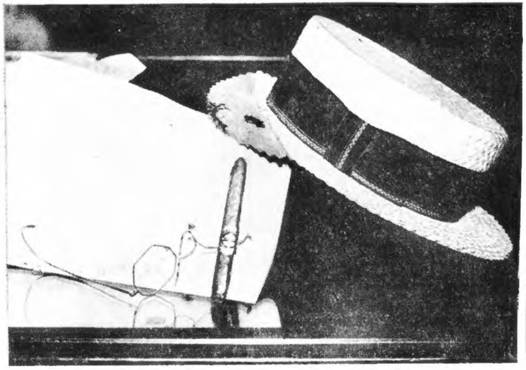
There were some other Federal agents around. hTe sun was rising and they had killed John Dillinger. It wasn't a bad night's work. Purvis was the chief and he showed his gun, so in that careless and carefree way the old reporters take on, I addressed them en masse and asked them to show theirs.

One agent, not knowing exactly who I was or why he shouldn't do it, pulled his .45. Dillinger hadn't been shot with that kind of a bullet. I didn't work around morgues for 20 years and not know that, I sneered. The other boys came out with their pistols—all but Cowley.

Ace Bandit's New Way Out That Failed



This gun was John Dillinger's new way out of his predicaments. But he never got a chance to use it. He half drew the brand new weapon from his pocket but then U. S. agents "got" him.



The bullet that killed Dillinger went through the rim of the ace bad man's hat. His glasses were broken when he fell. And police found a cigar—never to be smoked.

Dillinger Aid Flees Trap Speeds to Michigan, Report

Detroit, July 24—George "Baby Face" Nelson, trigger-man of the John Dillinger mob raised to the notch of "Public Enemy Number One" by the death of Dillinger, escaped a police trap at Sandusky, Ohio, and sped toward Michigan, according to Detroit police.

Detroit police were warned by Ohio authorities that "Baby Face" was on the loose. A car resembling Nelson's had been used by a robber in a holdup here. It bore black and gray Wisconsin license plates. Detroit police were informed:

"George 'Baby Face' Nelson driving black sedan—Wisconsin license 31064—last seen on Highway 2 between Cleveland and Toledo. Believed heading for Detroit or some Michigan point."

Dillinger Sold Out to Avenge Love Rivalry

By GEORGE C. GALLATI

International News Service Staff Correspondent

Chicago, July 24—While the bullet-pierced body of John Dillinger was prepared today for a 200-mile trip in a herase, it was disclosed that two ex-convicts and the mysterious "woman in red" sold out America's super-outlaw for the reward money and to avenge an old love rivalry.

Through a wall of secrecy maintained by federal sleuths came reports that "the woman in red," who was with Dillinger as he left the Biograph Theater to be ambushed and slain, was under heavy guard to prevent gangdom vengeance.

With Dillinger out of the way, Department of Justice agents mustered their strength to stop a killer just as dangerous—George "Baby Face" Nelson—who has replaced his pal as Public Enemy No. 1. J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the department, in Washington last night said Nelson and two other Dillinger gunmen, John Hamilton and Wily Homer Van Meter, were around or in Chicago.

IDENTITIES SECRET

Hoover shielded the identities of the agents who slew Dillinger and indicated that the names of the tipsters who "put the finger" on "Bad Man John" may never be revealed. Secrecy is essential for their safety, he said according to Washington despatches, adding:

"Dillinger's weakness was women. My last information was that he entered tre Biograph Theater with two women. But to disclose even the sex of the tipster might give Dillinger's gangster 'avengers' the clue they are looking for.

"Informants might not come forward if they knew that Nelson, Hamilton or Van Meter 'got' the person who 'spotted' Dillinger."

Hoover is expected in Chicago late this week, to "clear up certain matters." The inference was his mission will be to prove certain contacts Dillinger may have had with lawyers and physicians there.

Naming Nelson as new No. 1 public enemy Hoover declared:

"We're going to get that fellow. Now that Dillinger is gone we're going to concentrate on all members of his mob that are still left and on 'Baby Face' in particular. Nobody can kill one of our men and get away with it."

A reward of $5000 is outstanding for Gillis' capture and $2500 has been offered for information leading to his arrest. Among other criminals wanted, now that Dillinger is gone, are Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd and Richard Galatas, Western outlaws alleged to have taken part in the murder of four police officers and their prisoner, Frank Nash, in Kansas City, Missouri, June 17, 1933.

The first tip concerning Dillinger's general whereabouts and the fact that his penchant for the movies was taking him to the Biograph Theater, here, with each change of program, came from a Croatian informer, Police Captain Timothy O'Neill of East Chicago revealed today.

TRAP LAID

Bit by bit the trap was laid, with the help of information from others hungry for the reward on Dillinger's head.

What part "the woman in red" played in putting the "finger on" the desperado, O'Neill refused to say.

In a hearse brought here from his home town, Mooresville, Ind., by the aged farmer-father of the deperado, Dillinger's remains today were to be taken to Maywood, a suburb of Indianapolis, for the funeral services. He will be buried in Crown Hill cemetery, beside the bodies of his mother and stepmother.

Dillinger's slaying had hardly been pronounced "justifiable homicide" by a coroner's jury before federal investigators under Melvin Purvis, chief of the department of investigation here, took steps to trap the remaining five members of Dillinger's ruthless gang of outlaws still at liberty.

Their weakness for women, the same which lured Dillinger himself into the range of federal agents' guns, will be employed to trap the five, Nelson, Van Meter, Hamilton, Joseph Fox and Joseph Burns.

NAME SECRET

Her name held secret and even the fact that she is being held denied by federal investigators, "the woman in red," according to well founded reports, is either a sister or the wife of a former Dillinger gangster.

Her motives for putting "the finger" on the desperado were to gain the reward money expected to aggregate $15,000 and to obtain leniency for a male relative who is reported to be charged with mail robbery.

In the naming of the two ex-convicts—Fred Brennan and Clifford Mohler—as having taken a part in the betrayal, it was reported that one of them had co-operated in bringing about Dillinger's death because the outlaw had stolen another hoodlum's girl.

The two ex-convicts had worked with Dillinger in the shirt factory at the Michigan City, Ind., penitentiary. They were last reported to be living in East Chicago, Ind., whence came police Captain Tim O'Neill and five other officers Sunday with the definite information that Dillinger was to view the gangland motion picture, "Manhattan Melodrama," at the Biograph Theater.

BARGAIN MADE

Captain O'Neill and Sergeant Martin Zarkovich had negotiated with Mohler, Brennan and the woman to the end that an end to Dillinger's crime career was arranged and an agreement for payment of the reward.

Because to reveal the woman's identity would mean an almost certain death at the hands of the five hardened gangsters still at large, Purvis and his staff hushed up all mention of any woman. Purvis said:

"I can't say whether the tipster is a man or woman. All I will say is that the information was not given by a sweetheart of Dillinger."

Throwing doubt on the federal denial that "the woman in red" was under guard, was the brief police report of Sergeants James Frawley and Hugh Olsen, who were at the scene of the shooting. It read:

"At about 10:30 Dillinger, with a girl on each arm, came out of the theater.

"The two women companions with him were placed under arrest. We were unable to learn their names."

Bent on discovering a possible cache of some of the thousands of dollars in cash and securities stolen by the Dillinger gang in bank raids in recent months, police and federal agents were combing the territory about the shooting scene for the outlaw's hideout. Dillinger was carrying only $7 and some change when he was shot down.

Two hundred police were co-operating in the search for the hideout which is expected to restore the vast loot taken in wholesale raids on banks throughout the Middle West—raids that left a shocking trail of blood in their wake.

Sixteen men were slain in the search for and depredations of the super-outlaw.

New Franco-Soviet Pact Is Revealed

Paris, July 24 (INS)—It became known today that France and Russia have exchanged military missions and as further evidence of "rapprochement" the Soviets are sending an air squadron to visit France this month.

Efforts are being made by the French diplomatic service to obscure "community interest" between the two countries, but in private conversation French officials already speak of "the new Russian alliance."

ARMY TO SPEED AIR CHANGES

By Associated Press

Washington, July 24—Quick changes in the Army's air program were foreseen today as a result of the Newton D. Baker committee's report. The Administrtion is known to favor development of the nation's air arm along most modern lines.

The Army Chief of Staff, General Douglas MacArthur, was at work today whipping together suggestions to hand to President Roosevelt and Secretary Dern, when they return in mid-August. These suggestions are expected to form the nucleus of a redrafted Air Corps programs.

Outstanding recommendations of the Baker board which attracted interest include: all pilots should average 300 hours flying a year instead of between 150 and 200 hours; frequent concentration of Air units should be held for training maneuvers at different seasons of the year, including cold weather training flights in Alaska; Commercial Air Transport pilots should be encouraged to become members of the Army Air Corps Reserve.

New "Ace" Outlaw

To George "Baby Face" Nelson, shown here, has been given the doubtful honor of Public Enemy No. 1.

PURVIS' FATHER PRAISES SON

Timmonsville, S. C., July 24—Melvin H. Purvis, whose strategy snared America's No. One criminal, is "doing pretty good," in his father's opinion, for a quiet boy who preferred books to "cop-and-robber" games.

The 64-year-old planter father of the Department of Justice agent, a little dazed at his son's eminence, described him as "a kind of quiet boy."

"He began all this justice work seven years ago. He just went up there to Washington and got a small job at it and climbed himself to where he is, Melvin Purvis, the father said.

Playground Heads in Everett Named

Everett has been successful in placing its playgrounds under the ERA, and today Mayor James A. Roche appointed twenty-four playground instructors who will be paid by the ERA. A similar number of assistant instructors are to be appointed within a few days.

DEITRICK OPENS BIG DRIVE FOR LUCE'S SEAT

Opening a drive for Congressman Robert Luce's seat in Congress, Frederick S. Deitrick has taken out papers for the Democratic nomination in the ninth district.

Two years ago, Deitrick, who served in Congress and who also served three terms in the legislature and on the Cambridge board of aldermen, nearly defeated Luce, the vote being 61,178 to 56,425.

RAN AHEAD OF TICKET

Deitrick carried Cambridge, Brighton, Watertown and Waltham by substantial majorities, running ahead of the ticket. Throughout the district, he received more votes than did President Roosevelt and Vice-President Garner, while Luce was running 6000 votes behind Hoover.

"I made a vigorous campaign for the Democratic nomination and election two years ago," said Deitrick today, "and I intend to make an even more vigorous campaign this fall.

"I believe that the reactionary type of which Congressman Luce is the chief exponent in Massachusetts, is fast passing from our political life. Such men are far behind the times.

"Last winter, after one of the President's recovery acts had passed Congress, Congressman Luce made a prediction which he broadcast throughout the country, that we were in for a worse panic than the one we had under President Hoover.

SAW REPEAL DIFFICULTY

"This prediction of Congressman Luce has not yet, and never will come true.

"During the campaign of two years ago, Congressman Luce stated that the repeal of the 18th amendment was fraught with technicalities and it would be years before the repeal of the 18th amendment could be accomplished. The 18th amendment was repealed by the Democratic party in less than a year.

"Upon what question, may I ask, can Congressman Luce make a reasonably accurate prediction?

SUPPORT NEW DEAL

"He led many of the voters of the ninth district, during the last campaign, to believe he would vote for repeal of the 18th amendment, and after election, when the question came up in Congress, he voted against repeal.

"How can the voters of the ninth district believe in Congressman Luce's future statements?

"President Roosevelt has steered us with a clear mind and a steady hand during the past two trying years and, if elected, I shall support his policies."

Maine Fugitive Killer Held in Solitary Cell

By Associated Press

Thomaston, Me., July 24—Meek as a disciplined schoolboy, James W. Mitchell, murderer and prison bolter, sat in solitary confinement in a state prison cell today.

His three days of hunted liberty came to an end last night as two civilians found him lurking in the woods of Waldoboro and brought him back to life imprisonment.

The 25-year-old convict, who confessed the brutal slaying of Lillian I. MacDonald four years ago because she rebuffed his attentions, came back with his bravado quenched by fatigue and hunger.

Armed guards had trailed him since he scaled a prison wall last Friday night, and fled into the woods with two companions, also serving life terms for murder. The other fugitives, Allen H. Twitchell and Archie L'Italien, were taken the day after their flight, but Mitchell, dodging a hail of bullets, succeeded in prolonging his furtive freedom two days.

Clarence Hilt and Ralph Moss of Waldoboro, took Mitchell into custody, after finding him crouching by the side of a road, 15 miles from here. He surrendered without resistance.

Meanwhile Governor Louis J. Brann and his executive council prepared to investigate conditions at the prison. They planned to come here tomorrow for the inquiry. Warden Raymond Thurston blamed congested conditions at the institution for the trio's escape. Lack of adequate cell space, he said, compelled him to place some of the inmates on their honor. All three lifers who escaped were trusties.

PLUNGE KILLS MRS. LUBY

Mrs. aKtherine Luby, 69, of 69 Montebello road, Jamaica Plain, died almost instantly today of a fractured skull when she fell to a concrete sidewalk from a third floor porch at her home. She was rushed to the Boston City Hospital in a police ambulance, but was pronounced dead on arrival.

Her son, James, who was in the bathroom shaving at the time of the accident, told police he heard screams, and that when he rushed to the porch saw his mother lying on the sidewalk below. He told police his mother was subject to dizzy spells and had been under treatment at the City Hospital for the ailment.

Mrs. Luby is survived by her husband, Thomas F. Luby, a gardener; her son, and a daughter.

Banana Captures Escaped Monkey

Sophie, Wellesley's College pet monkey for the last three weeks since her escape from a cage while awaiting transportations to New York has been captured. And a peeled banana was the cause of it all.

The monkey met her fate when she could no longer resist the temptation of a banana placed in a box trap in the trees on the campus by workmen.

BRIDE HUNTED AT BEACHES

With the moon at its brightest quarter early this morning, police were scouting beaches and ponds for bathing parties, while other squads investigated dance halls and roadside stands in search of Mrs. Violet Janson, young bride who vanished a week ago.

Her husband is in serious condition from exhaustion, overexertion and heat prostration at City Hospital as a result of his efforts to find his pretty wife of fifteen months. He was found Sunday in a state of collapse.

Janson, chef at a roadhouse on the Boston - Providence highway, had told his wife that he lost his job, shortly before she disappeared, and had not been able to tell her the glad tidings that he had recovered the position.

Chief Perley R. Dexter of Wrentham, from where the bride vanished, has three theories of her disappearance upon which he is working.

The first and most important in his mind, is the theory that the bride had grown tired of the mode of living in uncertainty of her husband's job and has fled to a more exciting life.

BEACH COUPONS TOMORROW

A full day's fun at Revere Beach, at reduced cost, is assured amusement seekers through 40 aids to fun offered through the Boston Evening American. A handful of nickels will work wonders.

Wednesday will be Nickel Day at Revere Beach and through use of coupons to be published in issues of this newspaper tomorrow, the amusement seeker will be enabled to enjoy all the fun and to refresh himself and herself at reduced rates.

For instance, for a nickel, accompanied by one of the 40 coupons, you may get a hot dog and an orangeade at a boulevard spot noted for both.

For a nickel and a coupon you will be admitted to Bluebeard's Palace; for a nickel and a coupon you will be eligible for one ride on Seaplanes—and there are many similar opportunities of good value to be enjoyed.

The coupons—40 of them—will be published tomorrow in the Boston Evening American. Watch for them! Clip them! And then enjoy yourself at Revere Beach.

Doctors Tried in 'Perfect' Plague Germ Murder

By Universal Service

Calcutta, India, July 24—A scientific murder unparalleled even in the annals of Oriental crime was described here by the public prosecutor at the opening of the trial of Benoyendra Pande, Bengal landowner, and three Calcutta doctors, who were accused of killing Amarendra Pande, by repeated injections of plague germs.

The doctors on trial were Dr. Sivapada Bhattacharya, professor of the Calcutta School of Tropical Medicine, which is affiliated with the All-India Institute of Health and patronized by the Rockefeller fund; Dr. Durgaratan Dhar and Dr. Taranath Bhattacharya.

It was charged their "conspiracy" started in Febuary, 1932, when Benoyendra Pande decided to purloin the estate of his stepbrother Amarendra, valued at $6000 annually plus insurance of $4000.

The first attempt was made with a plague tube posted from Bombay, which failed, after which a second unsuccessful attempt was made through infected pince nez spectacles.

Two doctors, the prosecutor charged, then proceeded to an institute in Bombay, where plague research was carried out. They obtained bacilli, he charged, which they tested on rats.

Then they returned to Calcutta and injected the germs into their victim while he stood in a crowded railway station, it was charged. He died, and Dr. Sivapada wrote out a certificate stating death was caused by septic pneumonia, the prosecutor alleged.

New Pension Plan Effective Jan. 1

Medford's new contributory pension system will become operative January 1st, according to announcement by the newly appointed commission, named by Mayor John J. Irwin, which is to administer the fund.

The commission consists of City Auditor Alexander A. Lucey, City Clerk Charles A. Winslow, and former Alderman Robert N. Spofford.

Hartford Ex-Official Dies

Springfield, July 24—Joseph C. Dexter, 80, a former member of the Hartford, Ct., park department, was dead here at the home of his son, Albert J. Dexter, in this city.

learn the reverence for sacred things still exists.

The Austrian dictator Dollfuss is issuing new silver coins that will show on one side the Austrian coat of arms, a double eagle, and on the other the Virgin Mary with the Christ Child.

Around the Virgin are the words Magna Mater Austriae, "Austria's Great Mother."

The coin reproduces a madonna in the historic church of Mariazell that devout pilgrims have visited for centuries.

The coin, according to Dollfuss, will emphasize Austria's reverence for religion. There might be a considerable demand for these coins in America, assuming that no "NRA" or Treasury, or other regulation would prevent their coming in.

Young Democrats from a Brooklyn Democratic club started in seven motor buses for a day of pleasure, to include playing baseball against convicts in Sing Sing prison.

The game was not played because one of the "pleasure" buses, starting with defective brakes on which the driver said he would "take a chance," went through a railing into a lumber yard, killing 17, injuring others, of whom some may die.

The words, "take a chance," are among the most dangerous and most frequently used in our American vocabulary.

Young people fond of quoting, "Steve Brodie took a chance," should remember that Steve Brodie took no chance, never jumped off the Brooklyn Bridge. He dropped a dummy, dressed like Steve Brodie, from the Brooklyn Bridge, and was pulled out of the water, into which he had previously entered from a tugboat, while his dummy, well leaded, sank to the bottom.

News that malaria is spreading in Cuba, 6000 cases reported at Santiago, will disturb intelligent Cubans and doubtless cause an energetic fight against the dangerous malaria-bearing mosquitoes.

Mosquitoes spread malaria and also spread yellow fever. Malaria is the worst of the two, for it makes life worthless. According to scientists, the malaria mosquitoes coming up from the marshs, not rude barbarians from the north or the vices of the inhabitants, destroyed the power of ancient Rome.

Here is a place for shedding real genuine tears.

American bankers lent billions abroad after their foolish government had lent ten thousand millions. Germany, following the fashion, says she won't pay those private loans just now, because she finds it hard to get cash or credit to buy raw materials.

American bankers say, "we must fix that," and their representatives abroad are discussing more loans to Germany, that Germany may buy the raw materials, and pay.

The perennial Montagu Norman, director of the Bank of England, is on his way here to explain to American dodos why this country, not Britain, should lend Germany the money for raw materials.

Is not that enough to make the angels weep, especially when they read in the daily paper that England has a great deal of money to lend, and is looking around for "trustworthy borrowers?"

"GOOD OIL IS THE ANSWER! to most Hot Weather Troubles"

NOW... more than ever, Mobiloil Quality pays for itself!

HEAT is the biggest enemy your oil has. Heat steals the "body" from ordinary oil—makes it thin. So many hot-weather troubles can be traced directly to an unsatisfactory oil.

Avoid these troubles with a quality oil in the first place. Mobiloil holds its body—resists heat successfully. Even at highest engine temperatures—it stays on the job—not only lubricating parts but protecting them against too rapid wear. It has an extra-tough film.

Four out of five repair bills, experts say, begin with the lubricant. Cut down this proportion with Mobiloil. Get the oil which is the largest selling motor oil in the world—purely because of higher quality.

There are Mobiloil dealers convenient to you, wherever you may live—look for the nearest. The Mobiloil sign identifies good dealers—and quality oil.

FILPRUF PROTECTS YOU. Mobiloil is the only oil sold in the bottle with the lock top shown at right. You get the highest quality—guarded by lock and key all the way from the refinery to you. There is no extra charge for this protection. Just look for the Filpruf Bottle when you buy. It guarantees quality.

Given in Marriage

By Adele Garrison

Madge sees a successful end to all her planning as Mr. Veritzen makes his peace with Mother Graham.

CHAPTER 96

MY MOTHER-IN-LAW was in a difficult mood. I saw that as I came close to her arm chair, with Philip Veritzen flamboyantly escorting me. Her foot in its modish shoe—Mother Graham is almost childishly proud of her beautifully shaped feet—was tapping the rug; an ominous sign well known to her family, indicating stormy weather upon the household seas. From behind her chair Harry Underwood's eyes flashed humorous warning, and I braced myself for squalls.

They would not blow in Philip Veritzen's direction, however. I saw that instantly, for he bent low before her, with the reverential attention he might have given a testy duchess, while his deep, almost caressing voice would have soothed Elizabeth of England herself.

"I feel like proffering you my apologies on bended knees, Madame Graham," he said, and I reflected with twitching lips that the effect was exactly as if he had said, "Your Grace."

"I trust Mrs. Graham has given you my explanation why I have not presented myself to you before," he went on; and my mother-in-law, who had extended her hand to him much in the manner of one hypnotized, gave me what Lillian calls "her best askance look."

"Something was said to me about a delayed or missent letter," she said loftily, leaving the implication I had not taken the trouble to make any adequate explanation to her.

MR. VERITZEN EXPLAINS

"Oh, do let me explain to you!" he pleaded, and launched for the third time into the tale of the lost letter which even then, I knew guiltily, was hidden in my bag, where I put it after taking it away from Avis Arlen.

"You will believe, now, that I would have been here before, if I had received notice of the wedding," he said, when he had finished, with magnificent disregard of his cavalier behavior when Noel, Mary and I had first told him of the impending marriage.

But fortunately Mother Graham had not known of that contretemps, and she bowed her head graciously when Mr. Veritzen concluded with another effusive plea for pardon.

"Of course, it is perfectly all right," she said. "Please do not speak of it again. You are here at last. That is all that matters. What do you think of our decorations?"

ROSES FOR THE BRIDE

"They are truly wonderful," he said. Then Mary, coming up with Noel, struck just the right note when she caught her grandmother by the arm and exclaimed:

"Oh, Granzie! What do you think? This darling man says he is going to send me my favorite roses—those bronzy yellow ones with the rose pink edges—for my wedding. Won't they be just gorgeous against the oak leaves and the laurel?"

Mother Graham's eyes kindled with enthusiasm.

"Indeed, they will," she said, "while as for the table in the dining room—Margaret, didn't I hear you saying something about roses of that color?"

"I had thought of them, yes," I said, "because they are Mary's favorite. Mr. Veritzen, your kindly thought makes us all very happy."

"Thank you," he returned. "Be assured of one thing. You will have plenty of blossoms."

"You'll wade in them," Lillian whispered to me a minute later, when I had stepped back from the little group which Mother Graham was dominating. She was so plainly reveling in her role of grande dame, graciously receiving her granddaughter's future husband and his father, that I did not wish to run the risk of having Mr. Veritzen give me even any perfunctory attention which would interfere ever so slightly with her position in the center of the stage.

PHIL "SPREADS" HIMSELF

"I hope so," I returned.

"Greedy! Greedy!" she said softly, and I smiled in acquiescence.

"Guilty, m'lud," I said. "I never can get enough roses."

"You'll have enough this time," she said. "Isn't Phil just spreading himself all over the landscape? I knew he would just as soon as he made up his mind to bow to the inevitable."

"He's certainly playing the benevolent heavy father to perfection," I said. "I wish I were as sure of what Mother Graham's activities in the kitchen were just now."

Lillian nodded sapiently.

"She came through the door with the contented air of a kitten just finishing a saucer of cream," she said. "That generally means she's just finished polishing Katie off, doesn't it?"

"I'm afraid so," I said nervously. "I suppose I ought to go out and see—"

From the kitchen there came the sound of crashing crockery, and a high-pitched scream—Katie's.

Dry Skin Cream Bath

HERE'S A WAY for the dry skin victim to overcome the dislike for soap suds. She can give a preliminary cleansing with cold cream, dip the washcloth in sudsy water, place it gently over the face, rinse with warm water and dry. There will be no starchy sensation this way, and the skin will not [illegible] dry.

Leaf-Lace Frock Takes No Time and Little Yarn

THOUGH it's hard to connect such an exquisite frock with hard and practical ideas like economy and time-saving, it really merits a prize for both. It is knitted in one of the daintiest and most becoming leaf-patterns we've ever seen. It simply cries to be done in fluffy pastels, or if you go in for striking contrast, navy or brown will sheath and show you off splendidly. Six balls of yarn, instead of the usual 10 or 12, are used. Large needles and a loose pattern allow you to cover a lot of ground in short order. If you would like directions for knitting this leaf-lace frock, simply write to Annice Brink, Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Good Lessons on Correct Analysis

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The best procedure for the Declarer in playing a notrump contract is usually to tackle his longest suit first. Naturally one's longest suit is the suit which will produce the most tricks after the opponents' stoppers have been removed. However, it is just as bad to follow this principle blindly as not to know it at all.

In these instances the Declarer must naturally look for another way of fulfilling his contract . . . by using some shorter suit which will provide sufficient tricks, and which can be established without losing the lead too many times. Today's hand illustrates this point.

South, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ Q 10 7 3 ♡ A Q J 3 ◇ Q 6 4 ♣ 10 4
♠ 9 8 6 4 2 ♡ K 7 ◇ A 5 2 ♣ J 8 2	North West East South	♠ 5 ♡ 8 6 5 4 2 ◇ K 7 ♣ K Q 7 6 5
	♠ A K J ♡ 10 9 ◇ J 10 9 8 3 ♣ A 9 3

The bidding:

South	North
1 ◇ (1)	1 ♡
1 N T	2 N T
3 N T	Pass

(1) South is obviously too weak for a vulnerable notrump and in addition there is no stopper whatsoever in the heart suit. The slightly shaded diamond suit should be bid.

West opened his fourth-best spade. South took care at the first trick not to block the suit and won with the King in his own hand.

The diamond suit can be set up only after the lead has twice been lost. During this time, however, it looks reasonably certain that the defense will shift to clubs and in one lead will be able to set up sufficient tricks in that suit to defeat the contract. These tricks, of course, can be cashed when East and West get in with their second high diamond.

There is one other hope, however. The contract can be fulfilled by winning four tricks in each of the major suits in addition to the club Ace, merely assuming that the heart King is in the West hand and not guarded more than

At Trick Two therefore South led out his diamond Jack. West very brilliantly won this trick with the Ace and shifted to the club Jack. South, of course, knew that it was useless to hold up his Ace as the East player almost certainly held the diamond King, and even though he did not, the heart finesse had to be taken into the East hand anyway. After winning with the club Ace, South realized that he must change his plan of campaign.

South, therefore, played for his only hope and led the heart Ten. The Ace of spades was now cashed, the Jack of Spades led and overtaken with Dummy's Queen and the seventh, eighth and ninth tricks were taken with the spade Ten and the two high hearts in Dummy.

How to Develop Shoulders and Arms

Question: Can you suggest a means of developing my arms, shoulders and bust? Kindly suggest a home remedy for bleaching the face and neck.

G. B., Allston

Bust exercises will help, including the deep breathing, and shoulder circling will help in developing both chest and shoulders. To do this, simply rotate the shoulders backward and forward, first one, then the other, then both together. Cocoa butter will tend to develop the arms and shoulders. Massage well into the skin before exercising. Warm the preparation before applying.

Good home remedies for bleaching are lemon or tomato-juice, buttermilk, or peroxide diluted three parts. Try also a face pack comprised of ½ cup buttermilk mixed with enough corn meal to make a paste not soft enough to run. Apply to face and neck. Make a mask for your face to hold the pack in place, using cheesecloth, cutting holes for eyes, nose and mouth.

Falling Hair

Question: Shortly after the birth of my last child, my hair started falling out in profusion. I gave it the best of care, but nothing seems to help. Would it be all right for me to get a permanent?

R. E., South Boston

Answer: It is quite natural for your hair to fall out after childbirth. You must brush it daily and keep on massaging the scalp with your fingertips. You must not shampoo your hair more frequently than once every two weeks. Give time for your natural hair oils to lubricate your scalp. The itching will stop. You should never get a permanent wave unless your hair is alive with health. You might permanently destroy it.

Congratulate His Parents

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A young man—we were playmates when children—is being ordained into the priesthood very soon. I have been away from his city for over five years, but his parents were dear neighbors of ours, and I would like to write a letter congratulating them.

Please tell me what to write? Should I include my husband in my letter? How shall I sign the letter?

Your letter might read:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Britton:

My husband and I were deeply happy to hear the news of your sons ordination into the priesthood, and I do want you to know of our sincere congratulations on this sacred and significant step of his in joining the Holy Orders. You both must be deeply happy and justifiably proud of him, and do tell him, please, of our congratulations and of our wishes always for his well-being. He will fulfill his duties and responsibilities with the highest of ideals.

Dearest wishes to you from us both, and I do hope that we are to have the pleasure of seeing you sometime soon.

Most sincerely yours,
Mary Smith Birmingham.

Before and After Treatment That Is Simple Prevents Pain, Disfigurement

HOW WARM and soothing the sun feels as you stretch out for a few minutes' relaxation on the sands. You may promise yourself that your sun-bath will not be long, but usually the minutes stretch into hours. When a telltale flame of color appears you frantically heap on synthetic remedies and pray for something to relieve the pain. A miraculous sun burn oil that actually contains carron oil, will restore the natural oils stolen by the sun, so that your arms and shoulders will be kept soft and lovely as those of Jean Parker, young film star.

By Juliet Shelby

SUN BATHING is all very well, but sun burning, or sun stroke, is quite another matter. Plenty of people will rally around you with advice on how to acquire a becoming coat of tan, but very few will tell you what to do when you suddenly find yourself a first cousin to a broiled-live crustacean.

Sun baths are enjoyable and beneficial because they stimulate the formation of red blood corpuscles that make for health. But do you know when you've had enough sun? Few of us ever do, and that is why hospitals up and down the Atlantic seaboard are crowded these Monday mornings.

If this news reaches you after the damage of sun-worship has been done, you won't have to count sheep while you writhe in torment on a fevered bed. I have just discovered an ointment for sun burn that will make you believe in miracles. This exceptional cream is really nothing else but solidified carron oil and is used in foundries and smelting works all over the country for cases of third-degree burns. It is also used in hospitals for large-surface burns, so you can see how effective it should be for sunburn.

The name of carron oil derives its origin from the fact the cream was first used at the Carron Iron Works, Scotland. For many years this oil has been universally employed, because of its soothing and pain-relieving properties, as an application to burns and scalds.

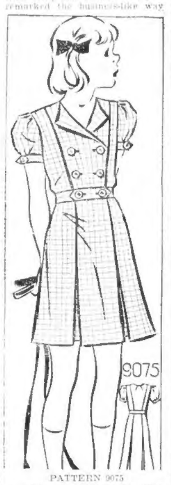
Even if you happen to be a wise and wary sun-bather of the I-look-before-I-leap variety, the boiling cauldron of a mid-summer beach can still do unlovely things to your complexion. A thin coating of this cream before you take your place in the sun, and you'll forget that there were ever such things in the world as dried and wrinkled skins, except, perhaps, on elephants, where they rightfully belong.

If you are interested in learning the name of this truly marvelous ointment telephone to Juliet Shelby, Liberty 4000. If you prefer writing for this information sent a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Miss Shelby, Boston Evening American, Boston.

Neat Frock of Dotted Swiss

MARIAN MARTIN

The thoughts of youth may be "long, long thoughts," as the poets tell us, but youthful frocks to be smart should be short and sweet—as this one is. Did you ever see anything cuter than those little puffed sleeves with their strap finish—and have you remarked the business-like way in which the whole little affair buttons up the front? Wouldn't your little Ann look simply stunning if she had a dress made like this of neat little crossbar print or dotted swiss or linen? It will take you no time to make.



PATTERN 9075

Pattern 9075 may be ordered only in sizes 8, 10, 12, 14 and 16. Size 10 requires 2½ yards 36-inch fabric.

Send 15 cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern. [illegible]

Pandora Tells You

DEAR PANDORA:

Every day in your column we've always looked to find an answer to our problem.

We are two cousins, aged 17 and 18. We left school several years ago to go to work. We have very strict parents. Pandora, these are some of their rules. They want us to go to work, then come home, all tired out, and do the housework. They don't believe in moving pictures, dances or even games. They never want us to speak to a boy. Even if we have a girl friend who speaks to a boy they won't never let us chum with her again. They never let us use makeup of any sort. All they want us to do is to be real, old-fashioned girls and stay home whereas we are the modern type. We are nice-looking and the boys would like to chum around with us if we were permitted to do so. We would like to have your advice on what to do.

DISCOURAGED COUSINS.

DEAR DISCOURAGED COUSINS:

Your situation is unfortunate and your parents are apparently too severe in the regulations which void all happiness for you. But move slowly. Even though they are not quite fair, their intentions are of the best. Be patient with them. I would suggest that you select of all your relatives the most genial, good-natured and understanding one—male or female. Tell him or her frankly about your unhappiness and ask that you at least be granted one privilege, say the movies once a week—at first. Start slowly. Be patient. When your parents discover that no evil comes to you with your first freedom, they can readily be induced to increase it. You are both very young. You will have years of happiness—soon.

PANDORA.

Graceful Walking

THE WEIGHT of the body should fall equally on heel and toe. Here is a simple rule for graceful walking. Place the foot upon the ground so that a person approaching will not see the sole of the shoe. Nothing is less graceful than coming down on the heel with the toe lifted.

Sandals for Toe Ills

TOELESS sandals are helpful to ease up all foot ills. They offer a chance of good ventilation, and that's what does the business. Walking barefoot in the sand grinds off calloused spots on the soles of the feet also.

The vacation she MIGHT HAVE HAD

ANNE cried as she came back from her two weeks at the shore.

She had looked forward all year to making new friends, having gay times, perhaps—who knows?—meeting "the man." But she hadn't. Everybody left her politely alone.

"They're just selfish and mean," she thought as she watched the other young folks go off on parties and picnics. But they weren't. Anne, for all her good looks, didn't measure up in an important particular. Other people couldn't help but notice a most unpleasant offense—perspiration odor in underthings.

A pity—Anne could have made herself dainty—adorable—the center of all the fun. It's the easiest thing in the world to avoid offending. Just Lux lingerie after each wearing. Dainty girls always do this. Why are there any girls who don't?

We don't notice perspiration odor in our own lingerie. Other people do—so quickly! When Lux takes it away completely, it's foolish ever to take a chance. Protect your popularity and charm. Use Lux every day.

AVOID OFFENDING

Underthings absorb perspiration odor—Protect daintiness this easy way

1. Lux underthings after each wearing. Lux removes perspiration odor completely — saves colors and fabrics, keeps them like new! It takes only 4 minutes a day!

2. Avoid ordinary soaps with harmful alkali, and cake-soap rubbing. These tend to fade and streak colors, injure dainty fabrics. Anything safe in water is safe in Lux.

Jerome and Linda Watch Apes as Son Flees Through Trees and the Father Pursues

SYNOPSIS

Jerome Cr[illegible]n, young naval architect, and a beautiful society girl named Linda, land on a strange island in the Caribbean after having fled from a quarantined vessel. Their skiff is mysteriously set adrift and their clothes stolen, yet there is no other sign of a living human at first. Intermittently, however, [illegible] come from the jungle. The mystery deepens when they find a well-kept though deserted plantation. They take refuge in a [illegible] house there. That night Linda's [illegible] creature and [illegible]. Linda, [illegible] Jerome [illegible].

The mystery of the [illegible] [illegible] appearance of a [illegible] [illegible] recites poetry [illegible] from getting [illegible] [illegible] in the face of [illegible].

CHAPTER XVIII

[illegible] were [illegible] futile and unnecessary [illegible] that flare up from [illegible] [illegible] nerve. It was interrupted [illegible] the sudden appearance [illegible] Racketeer.

[illegible] came [illegible] bounding through [illegible] plantation [illegible] evidently [illegible] table [illegible] Jerome [illegible] him one look then [illegible] [illegible] Linda back on to the [illegible] of her still [illegible]. The Racketeer [illegible] might have been followed by [illegible] attack or possibly the Racketeer might have been [illegible] [illegible] of this assertion of his manhood.

FATHER APE ANGERED

But to Papa [illegible] sounded [illegible] braggadocio and [illegible] own act. The [illegible] Papa saw [illegible] the unpleasant [illegible] was [illegible]. Any father [illegible] was an anticlimax [illegible] dignity. At any rate [illegible] [illegible] came a rush from the foot of [illegible] plantation that bordered on [illegible]. Papa was coming [illegible] like a baby tank over a hummock. But faster. Engaged [illegible] the Racketeer did not [illegible] approach of his enraged [illegible] [illegible] with a [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] leaping branch [illegible] over [illegible] foot over foot. He [illegible] [illegible] path. Papa gave a grunt of [illegible] [illegible] spring for the trunk of [illegible]. Both apes disappeared in a [illegible] crashing of foliage.

"I [illegible] different [illegible]" [illegible] to himself. "Here's a new [illegible]."

[illegible]

[illegible] Jerome [illegible] "I've [illegible] up [illegible] for the last two days from [illegible]. Apes never [illegible] women. No ape has [illegible] urge in that direction."

[illegible]

[illegible] the Racketeer might [illegible] know [illegible].

It was the middle of the afternoon and very [illegible] were going [illegible] the dry season [illegible] fact, [illegible] there was some [illegible] wind through the [illegible] on the east side of the [illegible] did not reach down in [illegible] of the higher ground.

This Is Life
by
ROBERT E. ROGERS

Robert E. Rogers

[illegible] in a newspaper. An event [illegible] as the one I am musing on gets itself [illegible] usually like this:

Rockport, July 23.—Preceded by a military and naval parade, including officers and men from the battleship Mississippi, now lying in Rockport Harbor, Post [illegible] of the American Legion today dedicated its new [illegible] built by Rockport workmen with CWA funds. The speaker of the day was U. S. Marshal John F. Murphy, a summer resident for many years.

Well, that gives you about all the necessary facts. To get the most out of a news story, you have to use your imagination. About a hundred years ago a [illegible] young English drug clerk, who happened to have the gift of poetry, mused upon a Grecian urn on which was sculptured [illegible] a similar occasion [illegible]:

[illegible] little town by river or sea shore,
Or mountain-built with peaceful citadel,
Is emptied of its folk this pious morn?

That's Rockport! There is no citadel. But the little town by the seashore did empty itself on that pious afternoon. It lined the streets with automobiles. It stood patiently six feet deep around the little triangle at the foot of Mike's Hill where stands the old schoolhouse that is now the Legion's headquarters and where now stands the fine new [illegible] bandstand built by the [illegible] of the town with government funds. Through the willows across the narrow street one can see the [illegible] Beach, and beyond the beach the sparkling [illegible] waters, flecked by the myriad white sails of the tiny racing yachts, and beyond the yachts the [illegible] menacing hulk of the gray Mississippi, looking more like a manufacturing establishment than anything meant to swim the waters of the seven seas.

Blazing sunshine and a cool wind. The local Legion band in blue and the ship's band in white [illegible] the bandstand, drawn up in the shade, a big detachment of seamen from the Mississippi with their junior officers. On the platform the Post commander, James G. Reily, the past commander and chaplain Edward Reed, and the Adjutant and master of ceremonies, Lewis Poole, Father McKenna and the Reverend George Gerrish, who made the final prayer, Hon. John F. Murphy, Congressman A. Piatt Andrew, and other Essex office holders, the selectmen, the ladies of the Auxiliary [illegible] one of the oldest veterans of the World War in the country, a Rockport man, now aged 76, who enlisted in the naval forces and served through the war.

"Who are these coming to the sacrifice?
To what green altar, O mysterious priest,
Lead'st thou the heifer lowing to the skies,
And all her silken flanks in garlands dressed?"

It wasn't as picturesque as that. The Greeks had a certain Cecil De Mille flair for public ceremonies that we Americans have never matched [illegible] except perhaps out in California. Rockport sacrificed no devoted, sacred beast to God and Franklin D. Roosevelt. There was no sacred dance about the new bandstand, unless you include the gyrations of the small fry who moved rapidly and irregularly over the clean swept open space, which up to the midnight before had been full of cake tables and [illegible] stands and ice cream counters and the [illegible] games, for instance, called Bingo, and swarming with [illegible] and family parties and motorists [illegible]. But [illegible] the small boys and girls clambered over the [illegible] steps and swung on the rails and crept up to gaze open-mouthed at the orators. Those uniformed men talking with simple dignity about the military and naval history of the town of Rockport were not, the children may have thought, exactly the same busy and businesslike folks who [illegible] behind the counter at the postoffice and the hardware store.

The sober blue Legion uniform with forage cap may not be quite as picturesque as the Grecian [illegible], nor so colorful. But that doesn't matter. G. K. Chesterton speaks somewhere of the modern aesthetes who complain so bitterly of the drabness and vulgarity of our modern ceremonies and sigh for a return of the classic festivals. If they could go back to Athens and Olympia, he says, they would find those drab and vulgar too. That's the sort of people they are. Like those smart summer-clad [illegible] passing my door that afternoon who said [illegible], in the earshot of the townspeople making their way down to the bandstand, "What do we want to spend an hour for, watching a hick parade in a village street?" That is one reason why summer visitors are beloved!

But just as some Demosthenes might recall to his auditors the days when Athens was a village and fought off the Medes at Marathon, so the speakers on this Sunday afternoon recalled the days when the Rockport fishermen, hearing of Lexington, gathered and drilled and marched away to Boston, fought at Bunker Hill and left three dead on the field; how the Congregational church was fired upon in 1812 by a British barge that was captured by the townspeople; how in the fog off Thatchers Island the Rockport seaman took a becalmed British sloop of war, laden with supplies and munitions and sent them to Washington at Cambridge.

The ceremony did not last long. Like all events it was ephemeral. But the words spoken and the spirit behind them will last, so long as memory lasts. John Keats knew that when he wrote his "Ode to a Grecian Urn."

NUDIST COLONY REPORT ROILS WINTHROP

Reports of a [illegible] nudist [illegible] Winthrop today [illegible] an uproar [illegible] to the culprits [illegible] established.

Phone in News Tips to the Boston American and Advertiser — Win $50 Weekly in Prizes

Do you want to make some money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American and the Sunday Advertiser are presenting the opportunity. Every week a total of $50 in prizes will be given for news tips telephoned in to the News Tip Editor at Liberty 4000. And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an important meeting is scheduled for a certain date, that an accident has happened, that there is going to be a business merger, that a celebrity is coming to town? That's a news tip. There will be given $25 weekly for the best first exclusive news tip received, $10 for the next best and $1 prizes for each of the fifteen next most valuable news tips. This offer is now in effect. Remember that SPEED is the watchword. First to the telephone with the news wins the award. News tips mean money.

Bill Changes at Summer Theaters

Summer theaters on the Cape and elsewhere in New England are presenting guest stars in new and old plays, and a lively interest in the drama promises well for the coming metropolitan season.

At Oak Bluffs the Rice Playhouse is currently presenting the Benn Levy play "The Devil Passes," with the season's favorite summer production, "The Pursuit of Happiness," to follow next week.

The Wharf Theater at Provincetown is offering a new play by [illegible] entitled "School Teacher."

The Beach Theater at West Falmouth has as its charming guest star Margalo Gillmore, talented member of the Theater Guild, appearing in Behrman's "Biography" with Richard Whorf [illegible]

Eugenie Leontovich continues at the Berkshire Playhouse in performances of Edward Sheldon's "Romance."

Keith Changes

Advancing its opening date from Saturday to tomorrow the Keith Memorial opens tomorrow with "Grand Canary," screen version of one of the newest best seller novels which has Warner Baxter as its star. The last performances of "Whom the Gods Destroy," featuring Walter Connolly and Doris Kenyon, are scheduled for tonight.

Set in the colorful Canary Island, "Grand Canary" sets forth the adventures of a group of visitors who are quarantined by an epidemic of deadly yellow fever. Baxter has the role of a doctor who finds himself engaged in both love and the practice of medicine.

Returns to the State Screen

Virginia Bruce, who is the star of "Jane Eyre," which will be the headline attraction at Loew's State on Friday.

Feature of Marblehead Race Week

EVERYWHERE THESE DAYS—North Shore—South Shore—in town and country—at the mountains, Mrs. Larz Anderson's new play, "FREEDOM," is the topic of enthusiastic dramatic comment. The interest is so keen in North Shore society and naval circles that the committee have been besieged to change the dates to make the production a gala part of Marblehead Race Week Festivities. The new dates which North Shore society requested are magic ones—Monday and Tuesday evenings, August 6 and 7, when Marblehead is filled with distinguished visitors from all over the country.

The charity—the Children's Island Sanitarium—is an appealing, popular one, with debs and sub-debs doing volunteer service on the island all summer. The setting, the Forecastle Deck—has all the glamor of the Riviera with the cooling breezes of the North Shore . . . and the play is simply grand. Everyone is thrilled with it, and everyone is looking forward to seeing popular Polly Gardiner, Mrs. Anderson's niece, who [illegible] attractive role.

The cast is a strong one, and most of the players have had brilliant, professional experience. There's lovely flaxen-haired Janet Sprague Treat of Dedham, of direct Myles Standish lineage, so young looking it is hard to believe she is the mother of two. Her father-in-law, by the way, left a [illegible] million in trust for the children. She has played widely in stock and has been prominent in the affairs of her alma mater, the [illegible] School of Expression, of which she is alumni president.

Constance Learned Heads Usher Group

THE FASCINATING ROLE OF COMMODORE PERKINS (Mrs. Anderson's father), around whom the play revolves, is taken by James H. Fassett. He has scored hits in stock and repertory and is as popular with debs as he was with his crowd at Dartmouth and Harvard. Admiral Farragut is played by an old favorite, John Henry of Winthrop, who swept along to success with Nat Goodwin, Lillian Russell, Douglas Fairbanks and the late Kate Ryan.

There is a beautiful ballroom scene with a number of prominent debs and sub-debs, and a Congo scene in the heart of darkest Africa with weird lighting effects, authoritative costumes and settings and native dancers that holds too many thrilling surprises to give away before production.

Constance Learned

Constance Learned is the popular and efficient Junior Leaguer who will have charge of the large group of popular debs who will usher. A number of them have been doing volunteer work as usual on the island.

Among those prominent on the ladies' committee of the Children's Island Sanitarium are Mrs. Donald C. Watson, chairman; Mrs. William T. Aldrich, Mrs. Lloyd T. Brown, Mrs. F. B. Crowninshield, Miss Emily Davis, Mrs. Carl Dreyfus, Miss Edith Fabens, Mrs. George P. Gardner, Jr., Mrs. Richard Harte, Mrs. Charles A. Rheault, Mrs. William D. Sohier, Jr., Mrs. Loring T. Swaim, Mrs. Robert Tappan, Mrs. George S. West.

The list of distinguished patronesses is growing daily, and the indications are that the opening night will be one of the most brilliant affairs of the North Shore social season.

'Did Bridget [illegible]— Has the Bridgeport shipment gone yet — [illegible] Sure, I'm having a great time [illegible]

MANY men make occasional telephone calls to their offices during vacation, just to keep in touch. Such calls, being brief and to the point, don't interfere with vacation schedules, but serve as an admirable check. With times and conditions uncertain, they are bound to help one's peace of mind, and they might turn out to be a wise precaution.

Today, we'd like to do a little pointing with pride to Ashleigh G. Drakes, who has just perfected the Drakes Intelligence Test. The D. I. T. is now available in wholesale lots, clubs and civic organizations a specialty. It's a time saver if there ever was one. All you have to do is read carefully the [illegible] 17 questions, and then fill in the one blank which asks what you think of the intelligence of Mr. Drakes, who invented the test. Writing "Okay" [illegible] Drakes, will rate a passing mark, while other emergencies will be handled as they arise."

And both having achieved their original goals they kept on because the horizon of their ambitions retreated as they advanced. But neither fought because he liked to fight, as was the case with Jack Johnson, Jack Dempsey, Gene Tunney and now Max Baer. And there lies the secret of ring greatness.

Johnny Evers and the Strenuous Life

Today Johnny Evers, chief of the Braves' scouting service, is in Oklahoma City. Tomorrow he is due in Toledo, and from day to day he is guided by telegrams and tolls calls from Boston headquarters, causing him to dash to some remote corner of the tall grass to spy on a likely rookie.

And out of all this, through the years, Johnny has picked up only three or four players, yet is counted valuable because he has often steered the club away from spending money on hopeless prospects

His is a life of long waits at yokel junctions for one-a-day trains, jumping overnight in day coaches, living in bowl-and-pitcher hotels, where musty odors mingle with kitchen smells, and roosting through hot mid-summer afternoons on some pine-board bleacher while straining his eyes at a stumble-footed player.

Perhaps he travels 10,000 miles a season, acquiring dyspepsia and sometimes flea[illegible] And all for a nominal salary of, say, $[illegible] a year.

DETROIT PAPERS are filled with funny sayings, japes and barbed wit, as Bucky Harris leads his Red Sox into town for the mid-season series. At that it may not be so comic, if Bucky's hired hands fire a broadside into Mickey Cochrane's team, which is hanging to the ridgepole of the league by one fingernail.

Harris, one gathers, yesterday had to swallow some unmerciful riding from the Detroit customers, who last year applauded him when he managed the club. From cheers to jeers in a single year

THIS HAS BEEN an unlucky season for Lou Gehrig, Yankees iron man first baseman. On top of having chipped a bone in his right foot, a painful beaning in an exhibition game and an acute case of lumbago, he has just been nicked on the right calf by a fast pitch in Chicago.

Lou, limping, continues doggedly to keep his string of consecutive games intact at a great personal tax. He wants, he says, to be reasonably sure that no young bucko is coming along to wipe out his record, which now stands at 1413 straight games.

Yet I am reminded of what Everett Scott, the old Red Sox and Yankee shortstop, whose iron man record Gehrig broke, said to me one the day that young Paul Wanninger was put into his position to break his sequence

"This has been a lot of foolishness on my part," said Scott. "If I'd taken my rest when I was sick and injured I'd have two more years of major league play in my bones. This iron man stunt has cost me $20,000 in future salaries."

Fuchs Invites Cambria to Boston Trade Conference

THE OWNER of the Albany club, Dick Cambria, with whom the Braves were dickering for Sington, the hard-hitting outfielder, expected in Boston today to confer with Judge Fuchs. Since the Giants bid for the same player, Cambria's value on the player has risen sharply, and the judge may have to add another player to Worthington, Hogan and Gyselman in order to do business

I HAVE ALWAYS been skeptical of college pitchers and their ability to make the major league grade as rapidly as youngsters bred and reared on the sandlots This was largely because the college moundsmen are not, as a rule, willing to go through the hard intermediate stages of minor league schooling.

Yet here in a single year come the two New York Yankee Johnnies, Broaca of Yale and Murphy of Fordham, and together turn in 13 victories

I recall Connie Mack's story about Bill Breckenridge, whom he picked up from Dartmouth in 1930.

Bill received $[illegible] for signing and $[illegible]000 for the rest of the year, starting late in June His contract stipulated that he could not be traded to the minor leagues in that season. Then, when the Athletics won the pennant, Bill received $5000 in World Series prize money

Finally, a month after leaving the club, he wrote to Connie, explaining that he thought he would retire from baseball to study law in his father's office. And he did, $15,000 richer for three months' work.

Colonel Leads With Chin

But How He Can Take It Is Called a "Burp" by Mates, How He Can Take it / Alvin Pimpkins, a Poor Loser

By Dave Egan

Rockingham, N. H., July 24—Nothing disturbs the equanimity [illegible] poise of the Colonel.

The hosses run until they drag their tails in the dusts. The crowds cheer, or moan as the case may be. But nothing disturbs Col. Egan, who goes along picking them day after day and night after night, with a special eye for blonde fillies.

The following letter would raise havoc with many a person, but I am man enough to print it, verbatim. Here it is viz [illegible] and as follows:

Home for Incurable Broken Bloke Hoss Players,
Filly, N. S.

Chuly 21, 1934.

Colonel David Basil Egan,
Racing Division,
Upper Kase Departments,
Boston American.
My Beloved Colonel:

This is to inform you that I am now about four lengths from the end of the dock having followed your advice on the Rocking (Ham) horses. I must say you are somewhat of a burp or if I may be so bold, you are unequivocably just a terrible tout.

Some time ago I read that you picked more winners than they do teeth at a dental plate factory. I rode along with you until my better judgment caused me to set you down as putrid. It should have been you, not Springsteel, ordered destroyed.

The last selection I took from you proved a frightful blow. It was awful. His name has passed into oblivion as far as I am concerned. But oh, in the stretch. That baby chased the pack like a cat goes after a fish wagon.

At the finish he looked like One-Eyed Connolly mooching along Boylston street, in as much of a hurry as a feller going to the electric chair. I thought they would have to get out the tractor to tow him home. Wadahoss, wadahoss. As a hoss you sho gave me a bad steer.

And while we're on the subject, I question very much your right to a Colonelship. Where did you get that one? Or shall we interpret it as something from the pecan tree, the kernel, nut? Well, you sure have got what it takes to make men leap from high buildings.

I'm now in the mood to take the gas pipe. Hoping to find you the same, I am

Anybody's from now on,
Alvin Calvin Austin Dostin Baisley Parsley Pimpkins,
Secretary.

My answer is as follows: Don't be a wise guy, Alvin, Calvin, Austin, Dostin, Baisley, Parsley Pimpkins. Just because you're secretary for a lot of broken blokes don't take the blame ont on me.

The hosses which I select run the best they can, even if most of them are spavined.

About the Colonelship, you are several varieties of mice to bring up the matter. How did you know that I wasn't a real Colonel? Did you write Aunt (Truthful) Bella?

ONLY U. S. TITLIST

"My home is not in England," she said. "I was born in California and I love Santa Monica. I spent six months in this country last year, and that is more than I spent anywhere else. I wandered through Italy, France, England and other countries, but I was always an American citizen.

"What difference does it make if you live in darkest Africa if you are an American citizen? It should not bar you from your rights of citizenship.

"I do feel that, at least, I ought to be nominated to represent America officially at Wimbledon, but the association here has not even done that.

"Yet I am the only American woman who won a championship at London or Paris this year. I have won 19 Wimbledon championships, and still I am not entitled to the courtesies of an American representative. The entire situation is iniquitous.

PLAYED ON TEAM ONCE

"Last autumn I took up the question with Julian Myrick, the association president. I pointed out to him that I have been representing America abroad for many years. I had a passport before the war—and won the Russian championship. But nothing has been done about it.

"I've discovered there's no good fighting about the matter. It was mischief to start with, and now they simply have their backs up. Abroad I can't be nominated as an American representative, so you see I am neither fish, flesh nor fowl.

"The United States Lawn Tennis Association has been amazingly inconsistent. I played on the Wightman Cup team once. I was No. 1 for America the year Helen Wills had her appendix out—in 1926—and we won.

"The year after, they calmly said I wasn't qualified. I happen to know that another player was influential in their reaching that decision. Mrs. Moody has always been furious about their leaving me off the team.

ALLISON INDIGNANT

"I don't know how much longer I can go on playing as well as I am playing now, but I would feel a distinct satisfaction to be named for the team once more."

Wilmer Allison, former Davis Cup star, was on the same boat returning from an aimless, hurried trip to [illegible]. He also bore a [illegible] against the United States Lawn Tennis Association [illegible] off. Ordered to England for the express [illegible] purpose of [illegible] with George Lott in Davis Cup doubles, he [illegible] that Lester Stoefen [illegible] given the place.

"Naturally I was disappointed," he said. "I'm only human. I was sent over to play, and I wasn't played. Draw your own conclusions."

Wilson Picks Five

Rockingham Park was the scene of a field day for Dave Wilson, the Boston American turf handicapper, yesterday.

Wilson picked five of the seven winners on the card. One of his selections was scratched. In all, of his 20 win, place and show selections, 1[illegible] finished in the money. Quite a mark to be proud of.

He picked Toolbox in the opening number, and the horse won at $4.50. Lord Tournament, his selection, was scratched in the second number. All Forlorn won the third at $7.50, just as Wilson predicted. The Pelican, his pick in the fourth, was a winner at $4.90. Adobe Post, his selection in the fifth, came in to pay $5.50. Fabius won the sixth, but Wilson had him spotted for the second slot. His last winner of the day was Quick Step, in the final number, paying $9.00.

MIXED TREND PREVAILS IN MARKET

New York, July 24—The stock market made a strong effort to regain its composure today following yesterday's wide open break, but met with only partial success as scattered selling persisted in some sections of the list, notably the rails.

Efforts to start a recovery in stocks were hampered by the action of commodity markets. Wheat and other grains moved fractionally lower in the early trading and cotton dipped nearly $1 a bale.

The recovery movement met with the least success in the rails, where fresh selling was visible in Southern Railway common and preferred, both of which hit new lows today. Atchison, New York Central, and Chicago & North North Western rallied fractionally, but this appeared to be due to short covering rather than to any aggressive buying.

Chrysler was a strong spot in the motors group running up nearly a point at the start but lost about half its gain.

United States Steel and other industrial shares received the best support and made some headway in their recovery.

United Aircraft met with further buying and advanced fractionally. Liquor shares were mixed with Schenley higher, while National Distillers dipped fractionally. Utilities were strong under the lead of Consolidated Gas.

Sales to 11 a. m. approximated 390,000 shares.

Trading was active during the first hour. The trend was mixed and prices held for the most part within a narrow range.

Issues up a point or so included American Can, California Packing, Corn Products, DuPont and Erie. Allied Chemical dropped 2½ and Worthington Pump was down 3. Deere & Co. and Union Pacific eased about 1.

A number of metal shares and other industrials got up sizable fractions, while rails continued to move lower. Communication shares met further selling.

Commenting on the application of the Railroad Credit Corp. to the Interstate Commerce Commission for a plan for reorganization of the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway Co., E. N. Brown, chairman of the reorganization committee for the road, stated that no plans for taking the line out of bankruptcy were under consideration at the present time.

It would be advisable, he added, to wait for an improvement in business before drawing a plan.

ADVERTISING UP 9.9 PER CENT

The confidence of business men that sales opportunities justify increased promotion effort is reflected in the increase of 9.9 per cent in the volume of newspaper advertising in June, as compared with June, 1933, Advertising Age reports.

The total volume in 77 leading cities was 145,237,000 lines, as compared with 132,150,000 lines in June, 1933. General advertisers led the way in percentage of increase with a total of 27,922,000 lines, a gain of 17.9 per cent over the figures of a year ago. Automotive advertising made an increase of 1,046,000 lines to 12,918,000, an increase of 8.8 per cent.

Retail advertising also showed a healthy increase of 4,715,000 lines, the new total being 76,715,000 lines. The percentage gain was 6.53. Classified advertising gained 4.6 per cent, totaling 20,946,000 lines, while financial registered a loss of 154,000 lines, approximately 6 per cent. This is the only newspaper advertising classification which showed a decrease for the month.

Magazine advertising is also going ahead rapidly, Advertising Age reports. July lineage of 104 publications totaling 1,636,000 lines, an increase of nearly 45 per cent compared with the corresponding month of 1933.

Congoleum Earns $1.11 in 6 Months

Congoleum-Nairn Inc. reports for six months ended June 30, 1934, net profit after all charges of $1,346,174, equal after final dividend on preferred stock (since retired) to $1.11 per share on the 1,198,351 shares of common stock outstanding in the hands of the public. This compares with net profit in the first half of 1933 of $1,042,224, equal after preferred dividends to 83 cents per share on 1,174,351 shares of common, and net in first half of 1932 of $367,297 or 26 cents per common share.

Crane Nominated I. B. A. President

Ralph T. Crane of Brown Harriman Co., Inc., New York, has been nominated by the board of governors of the Investment Bankers' Association of America as president of the association for the year 1934-35. The board of governors also nominated 23 members of the board from 13 cities, including one from Boston, viz.—James J. Minot, Jr., of Jackson & Curtis. The nominations are subject to election at the association's forthcoming annual convention, Oct. 27-31, but nomination is considered equivalent to election.

Crosley Ships Fewer Radios In Quarter

In the three months ended June 30, the first quarter of its fiscal year, Crosley Radio Corp. produced and sold more household electric refrigerators than in any previous quarter of its history, sales totaling approximately 67,000 units, against around 28,000 in the like 1933 period. Radio sales, always at a low ebb in the June quarter, were slightly behind those of the quarter a year ago. Unit costs per refrigerator and radio were slightly higher, because of higher wages, etc.

Earnings for the June quarter will be reported later this month, and will compare with net profit, after royalties, taxes and charges, of $104,911 or 19 cents a share, in the quarter ended June 30, 1933.

Although refrigerator production has eased considerably from the record high rate of the past three months, Crosley Radio currently is operating near capacity. An increasing number of workers and an increasing amount of factory space are being turned to radio manufacture. While it will be several weeks before assembly lines are completed for all of Crosley's new model receiving sets, quantity shipments are being made on most of the new sets.

According to Pres. Powel Crosley, the sales outlook for radios for the coming fall and winter season is "distinctly encouraging." The selling season is just commencing, but orders to date from dealers indicate a growing demand for the more expensive type of radio receiving-set. Sales of lower priced "midget" sets are expected to continue at about the same level as in the last several years.

CURB MARKET HAS FIRM TONE

By International News Service

New York, July 24—A better tone on the "big board" brought some firmness into the Curb Market in the early trading today with fractional gains appearing in a number of instances.

Utility shares were in fair demand in the forenoon dealings under the leadership of Electric Bond & Share which rallied ¼ to 12. Niagara Hudson Power moving in a narrow range lost ⅛ at 5⅛.

Mining stocks also were better supported today as South American gold ruled ⅛ higher at 3⅝, and Wright Hargraves ⅛ at 9⅝.

Packing issues which had been under considerable pressure yesterday, showed signs of recovery with Swift up ⅛ at 16⅞.

Specialties were mixed with American Cyanamid down ⅛ to 17½, and Greyhound off ⅛ at 18¼.

Bar Silver Is Firm

Ford Motor of France

Ford Motor Co. of France will hold a meeting of its stockholders shortly at which no quorum is necessary to authorize the directors to sign an agreement for a merger with the Mathis Automobile Co. and to pass over assets to a new working company. Mathis has agreed to the merger. The new company will be known as Mathford.

Continental Securities

Continental Securities Corp. reports net assets at June 30, 1934, with investments based upon available market quotations or in the absence thereof on estimated fair value, amounted to $421,230 after deduction of $2,778,000 with respect to the debentures in the hands of the public. This was equal to $29.62 a share on the 14,219 shares of preferred stock outstanding and compares with $339,704, or $23.89 a share on the preferred stock on Dec. 31, 1933.

BOND MARKET IS FIRM

By International News Service

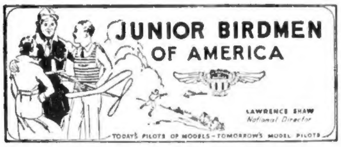
New York, July 24—Rallying tendencies in stocks brought some firmness into the bond market today, notably the second grade and more speculative rail obligations which had been heavily liquidated yesterday.

Southern Railway 4s of 1956 which had crashed to a new low yesterday jumped 1½ points to 55½. The Southern 5s however, were off ⅛ at 99⅞, and the 6½ of 1956 ⅜ to 77¼. St. Paul adjustments also were in better damand and recovered ⅜ at 8⅜, and the 5s of 1975, ¼ to 31.

Motion picture issues continued to meet with some selling as the Warner Bros. 6s lost ½ point at 51.

Communications were somewhat improved under the leadership of Postals which advanced nearly a point to 44.

United State Government and other high grade investment liens were stead. Foreigns were quiet with the German 5½s up fractionally.



JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA
LAWRENCE SHAW
National Director
TODAY'S PILOTS OF MODELS—TOMORROW'S MODEL PILOTS

By L. F. ROSS
Boston Wing Commander

Greetings! You will be interested to know that the New England branch of the Junior Birdmen now has 8266 members, each of whom is an air-minded boy or girl between 10 and 21 years old, who, through this daily column in the Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, is learning the rudiments of aeronautics.

In addition, of course, they are participating in various contests and activities, the winners of which receive cash or equally valuable prizes. These include the current contest, in which two one dollar bills are awarded for the best aviation jokes, and the Writers Club Unit, which enables members to correspond with Junior Birdmen in other cities and states.

Helen Sieger

Boston proper leads with the largest membership of any city. There are 661 Junior Birdmen in Boston, consisting of 417 "B" members and 244 "A" members. Dorchester is second with 565 members 443 "B" and 122 "A" members.

Ranking third is Roxbury with 432 members, 335 in "B" and 97 in "A" group. Everett, Cambridge, Lynn and Somerville are fighting for fourth. The next report may show that one of these cities has indisputable hold on this place.

About 40 squadrons have been formed and while the activities of a great many of these have been closed for the summer with many of their members away in camps, the others are holding regular meetings and striving through various activities to increase their membership.

One of the livest of these is No. 15 Squadron, of which Charles Freeman is commander and Leonard Wittenberg is captain. On Monday afternoon, July 30 this squadron will conduct an R. O. G. and solid scale model contest under the direction of Leonard's sister, Miss Lillian Wittenberg, of 5 Greenheys street, Roxbury, supervisor of the Quincy E. Dickerman playground in a building at that playground.

Bruno Marchi of Medford, long experienced as model plane builder and flier, will be the judge. Certificates of merit will be awarded to the winners.

Miscellaneous Notes of Interest

In Friday's column we will have important news regarding the Junior Birdmen All-America model plane championship contest in Washington. Even if you aren't the lucky city champion who will make the trip to the nation's capital, be sure you read tomorrow's column. It will interest you all.

Two books, which Evelyn A. Langill, 17, of 120 Rosseter st., Dorchester, says are unusually interesting, are "Cold," by Lawrence McKinley Gould, and "Skyward," by Admiral Byrd.

The Tailspin Unit is growing. This is the group composed of student and licensed pilots. Our latest member is Frank LaValle, 17, of 46 Exchange street, Waltham, who says he has been up more than two dozen times. He's a student at the Eastern Flying School, Waltham. He has flown in Fleets, Wacos and Bellancas. He says he is proud to be a member of the Junior Birdmen.

Our Writers' Club is growing by leaps and bounds. Among recent members to join are Leon H. Levesque of 11 Gilmore street, Foxboro; Jean Hill of 443 Merrimac street, Newburyport; Abraham Tatelbaum of 175 Townsend street, Roxbury, and John Crowley of 72 Edgewood street, Roxbury.

They say they can hardly wait to begin writing other members in distant cities and states. Remember, if you feel that way, too, just write your name, address, age and membership on a card and send it in to headquarters with a request that we enroll you in this new service.

Keep on sending in your entries for the Funnybone contest and you'll keep those dollar bills coming. The number of weeks this contest runs is entirely up to each one of you. Every week you should have at least one joke. If you can't find any in papers and magazines, make them up!

Air Dictionary List Nnmber 30

We're moving fast in our second section of the air dictionary. Here's list No. 30 with some additional important definitions:

Fabric (General)—A material for covering.

Fabric (Balloon)—The finished material, usually rubberized, of which a balloon or airship envelopes are made.

Fabric (Gas-Cell)—The fabric used in making gas cells for rigid airships.

Fabric (Gold-beater's Skin)—A fabric of a layer of light, fine, strong cloth, usually cotton, to which one or more layers of goldbeater's skin have been cemented.

Fairing—An auxiliary member or structural part of a plane whose primary function is to reduce the drag of the part to which it is fitted.

Fin—A small fixed auxiliary surface of airfoil attached to the aircraft to aid directional stability.

Fin carrier—A frame to which the inboard edge of the fin of a non-rigid or semi-rigid airship is attached so as to prevent the edge of the fin from sinking into the envelope.

Fishtail—A colloquial term describing the motion made when the tail of an airplane is swung from side to side to reduce speed in approaching the ground for a landing.

Fishtail—A colloquial term describing part used in the structure of an airplane or airship. If without qualification, a metal part is usually understood.

Have we skipped any words or terms? Perhaps you have noticed one here or there. Even though this may be the most complete dictionary ever published, it is never possible to continue along with a subject such as this and not miss up somewhere. Let us know if you have found a word missing in any of the letters from A to E and it will be included in the addenda at the end of the dictionary feature.

The picture appearing today is that of Helen Sieger, 10. She has been confined in the Good Samaritan Hospital, Boston, for many months. Her mother says it will make Helen very happy if some of the Junior Birdmen will write to her.

Happy Landings!

Musical Review Revival on Air Tonight

By N. F. T.

Few musical shows have ever caused as much furore or attained the degree of importance in theatrical history as that lilting operetta of 1900 called "Floradora" and written by Leslie Stuart. Tonight the radio realm brings it back for an hour of coast to coast dial diversion (WEEI) from 10 to 11 o'clock. Many a Grandma and Grandpa will be tuned in methinks.

In the first production six beautiful girls were the toast of New York. Chorus ladies became famous stage stars and members of the "Floradora Sextet" married millionaires while the sprightly show was running on Broadway for 504 performances, also taking in over $2,000,000 at the box office.

Tonight the network version brings Gladys Swarthout and John Barclay to the microphones, cast in roles originally portrayed by Cyril Scott and Edna Wallace Hopper. Yes and the catchy "Tell Me Pretty Maiden" will fill the air for a theme throughout.

SOUTH SHORE SONG BIRD

When the weekly "Secret Agent X-9" broadcast comes along (WAAB) as of 6:30 this evening, listening boys and girls are to be entertained by beautiful 13-year-old Helen Young, songstress of Holbrook rd., Quincy. Helen is rapidly forging to the front as a radio personality and her song interpretations as well as flare for imitating celebrities is attracting wide attention. Mrs. Edward Young, mother of Helen, will attend to the piano accompaniment.

Old melodies of Scotland, namely "The Campbells Are Coming" and "Annie Laurie" and "Blue Bells of Scotland" are the featured favorites waiting to be wafted on the waves (WNAC) at 10:15 tonight, played by Freddie Rich and his "Troopers" tune troupe.

You Hear Her on the Radio

EDITH ADA BELIN

Edith Ada Belin . . . The doctor's dotter . . . Whose Dad is the Boston well-known medico . . . Harry Belin . . . of 1961 Commonwealth avenue . . . In Brighton . . . But who doesn't need her Pappy's name to make her own. Edith . . . Whom you hear on the air . . . Over Station WBZ . . . Every Thursday night from 10 to 10:30 . . . With the NBC Artists' Service Revue . . . Is one of the busiest ladies in Boston . . . Writing her own material . . . Preparing continuities . . . Whipping out one-act plays . . . Preparing song broadcasts . . . And in a pinch being a dancing teacher.

In odd moments . . . Such is Edith's versatility . . . She has been in vaudeville . . . Has appeared in musical comedies . . . Has had large parts in dramatic stock . . . Has been prima donna in the ballet . . . And has coached amateur musicals and dramatics.

Edith is a graduate of Emerson College of Oratory . . . And her first big coaching job was in her own neighborhood . . . For "Brighton Highlights of 1933" . . . Which she sandwiched in between radio appearances.

Once . . . In a bygone day . . . She sang over KDKA . . . In Pittsburgh . . . The first entertainment microphone which ever swung into action . . . But mainly she has been going out from Boston stations . . . And is one of the leaders in the Thursday night Artists' concert.

Edith also has sung . . . Over the air . . . From the Capitol Theatre . . . In Allston . . . Just down the hill from her home . . . And last year she was prima donna . . . With Joe Laurie, Jr's. Co.

MALDEN CRITIC OF ERA DEFIED

Toni B. Rucci of Adams street, Malden, who recently filed charges against Administrator Dr. Joseph W. Proctor of the Malden ERA with State Administrator Carney, applied to Dr. Proctor today for a nurse for his wife.

Dr. Proctor refused the request.

Rucci, according to Dr. Proctor, appeared at his office in Malden City Hall and said:

"I demand as a citizen and one of my rights that the government furnish a nurse until my wife is able to be up again."

Rucci charged, in his complaint to Carney, that Dr. Proctor discriminated because of religious and political differences, when he applied for work as a supervisor or foreman.

Dr. Proctor countred by saying he was not empowered to appoint supervisors, but only laborers. Rucci then applied as a laborer and was promptly put to work by Dr. Proctor, but he did not withdraw the charges. Rucci formerly was a prosperous contractor and property owner in Malden.

Audience Needed. Police Fill Bill

Saugus police and constables were forced to go out into the streets and round up 33 persons when selectmen found that they were unable to hold a special town meeting because the required numbr of citizens failed to appear to constitute a quorum. The meeting, although a bit late, was held as scheduled.

Our Uniforms for Americans Only

AMERICA ought to keep out of foreign entanglements and keep foreigners out of our affairs.

American citizens should support this stand by keeping themselves out of the uniforms of foreign military, semi-military or any other kind of militaristic organizations.

They should also insist that foreigners keep their military or militaristic organizations out of this country.

An organization with a clearly military slant, such as the one headed by Hubert Schnuch and described by him before the Congressional committee investigating Nazi activities in this country, has no rightful place in the United States.

This powerful committee is headed by Congressman John McCormack of Boston.

Members of the Friends of the New Germany, organized throughout the United States in forty local units, drill under a foreign flag, in foreign uniforms, with foreign slogans, to the tune of orders in a foreign language. Only veterans of the army and semi-military organizations of a foreign nation are permitted to be members.

It makes no difference that the organization is German. It does make a difference that it is hyphenated, militaristic and linked to un-American ideas and ideals.

Americans who want to drill and to wear uniforms have plenty of opportunities to do so. They can join the National Guard, the finest organization of its kind in the world.

They should do so. They should train themselves to keep in readiness to defend our ideals and institutions.

But they should do so in American organizations, under the American flag, with undivided allegiance to America.

Tourist Industry

With summer tourists now spending freely in Massachusetts and the rest of New England, it is interesting to note the exact position of this growing industry.

Thomas Dreier, former Boston leader, now boosting New England from Melvin Village, N. H., supplies us with statistics.

He finds that, owing to the heavy Massachusetts and Connecticut investment in manufacturing lines, recreational property is only three per cent in the Bay State and two per cent in Connecticut.

In Vermont it is eleven per cent and in New Hampshire sixteen per cent.

Our percentages may sound small, but we should not lose sight of the fact that they are important in dollar values. Also holding out great promise for the years ahead.

Mr. Dreier finds that, in the Granite State, almost one-half of the recreational property is owned by non-residents. He sensibly calls for fitting appropriations by our legislatures to advertise our attractions.

Problem of Lawns

Now that Greater Boston has had a taste of a drouth—something that many of us believed could not occur outside the Midwest—numerous suburbs have been forced to place rigid restrictions on the sprinkling of lawns.

To many an office worker that hour with the hose just before it gets dark was the most soothing of the day.

These men may gain a little consolation for the loss of this pleasure from the announcement of a scientist that hosing lawns does them no good.

It barely tickles the roots of the grass, he says.

What is needed is hours and hours of soaking with an automatic sprinkler. But that's forbidden, too! So it looks as though only good rains can turn our yellowing lawns to green again.

Playground for Public

Good news is the announcement that the State has purchased the hundreds of acres of the Breakheart Hill Forest, near the Lynn Fells, and will throw them open before the end of the summer as a playground for the public.

The tract is covered with a fine stand of timber that is in almost primeval condition. There are two large ponds for swimming and boating, and plenty of trails for hiking and headlands and hills for climbing.

The land was purchased from the men who once used it as a private retreat. About all that needs to be done is the widening of the road leading into the Forest from the Lynn Fells boulevard.

Bostonians will be glad to have this fine recreation spot—only a few miles from the State House—at their disposal.

Business Is Better

Numerous authoritative reports are at hand to show business is better.

State NRA director F. A. O'Connell gives cheer with the news that last month showed in Massachusetts a retail sales gain of 10.9 per cent over the like period a year ago.

The general gains are reported on a wide front.

A number of closed mills have been reopened, aiding employment. At Rockland, Me., the granite paving industry, idle two years, has started up again.

Portsmouth, N. H., and Newburyport report additional shoe factories operating. The Clinton Chamber of Commerce finds industrial payrolls 50 per cent above those of a year ago.

Driving Away Fog

Colonel E. H. Green, son of the late Hetty Green, has long been sponsoring scientific researches at South Dartmouth.

Now from this Nature's laboratory, backed by inherited millions wisely used, comes important news.

It is reported that Henry G. Houghton, Jr., a young Massachusetts of Technology scientist, has successfully demonstrated an invention which drives away fog.

Such an invention means that one of the water's most serious menaces has been conquered. Also that air lanes may be kept open to 'plane traffic.

Congratulations to all at "Tech." who have helped to make the great accomplishment possible.

Very Good Investment

Young, healthy, trained, they represented one of the best investments ever made by Massachusetts.

In a country with as small a standing army as that of the United States, these guardsmen are our guarantee against aggressors. They are the officer material around which a great citizen army can be built in an emergency.

They are the State's contribution to the safety of the [illegible]on.

Aviation As Defense -:- By James T. Williams

As the American people, "read, mark, learn and inwardly digest" the conclusions and recommendations of the distinguished committee which has just completed a most comprehensive and painstaking study of aviation as an agency of national defense, they will be impressed by the competency of the chairman and other members of this distinguished committee for the task assigned to them by the Secretary of War, with the hearty approval of the President.

Like the Morrow board, appointed by President Coolidge in 1925 to study "the best means of developing and applying aircraft in national defense," the special air corps committee selected by Secretary Dern had as its chairman an eminent civilian and a majority of civilian members.

EXPERT MEMBERS

For chairman of the committee, the fifteenth federal agency since the great war to make a study of aviation as an agency of national defense, Secretary Dern drafted the Honorable Newton D. Baker of Ohio, President Wilson's war-time secretary of war. Mr. Baker's deep interest in national defense has continued ever since his retirement from the cabinet.

The other civilian members of the Baker committee brought to its deliberations an expert knowledge and extensive experience that effectively supplemented the special qualifications of the five military experts who made up the minority.

In addition to Mr. Baker, the civilian members of his committee were:

Clarence D. Chamberlain of New York, who became an aviator during the great war and served in the aviation section of the army signal corps from 1917 to 1919. This justly famous trans-atlantic flier, aviation enthusiast, engineer and inventor is a man of rare courage, sound judgment and broad knowledge of aviation.

James H. Doolittle of Missouri made a brilliant record as an officer of the army air corps before he resigned to continue his service for aviation as a civilian expert. He was the first aviator in this or any other country to make a landing without being able to see the field as he approached it. He has been awarded the distinguished flying cross with oak leaf.

AVIATION PIONEER

He was the winner of the Schneider trophy race in 1925, the Mackay trophy in 1926, the Harmon trophy in 1930 and the Bendix trophy race in 1931. In the same year he was the holder of the coast-to-coast flying record.

Edgar S. Correll of Missouri is not only one of the earliest of American military aviators but as a distinguished officer of the army corps he was the man who actually formulated the basic principles for the expansion of our two dozen aviators in 1917 to the tremendous force which this country created for aerial activities in the great war.

He became a junior military aviator in 1915, served with the first aerial squadron of General Pershing's expedition to Mexico in 1915-16. During the great war he served at general headquarters of the A. E. F. as adviser to the chief of operations on all that pertained to the use of our air forces in France. He was awarded the distinguished service medal for most excellent service as a member of the United States aeronautical mission and was a member of the air service with the general staff of the A. E. F.

His expert knowledge of military aviation gained with the colors has been reinforced since he left the army after the Armistice by extensive service and success in the world of industry.

PRESIDENT OF M. I .T.

Dr. Karl Taylor Compton, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, is an eminent scientist well known to all Americans. He served as an aeronautical engineer in the army in 1917 and was an associate scientific attache of the American embassy in Paris in 1918. Since that time he has been chairman and member of important committees on communications and transit and deeply interested and active in the development of American aviation.

Dr. George William Lewis has been a member of the national advisory committee for aeronautics since 1919 and its director of aeronautical research. His wide acquaintance with the advance of aviation not only in this country but throughout the world qualify him to give invaluable advice about the development of aircraft and aviation instruments, as well as their design, development, testing and procurement.

These are the civilian experts who, in association with a representative group of military experts, have just completed three months' intensive study of military aviation in particular and the development of aviation throughout the world. They took the testimony of 105 witnesses, representing the best available civilian, naval and military thought on aviation and making a printed record of more than 4000 pages.

Human Side of the News -:- By Edwin C. Hill

One by one the group of national leaders who ruled through Armageddon have drifted out of life, all save a few. Woodrow Wilson, Clemenceau, Briand, Asquith, have gone over the divide, along with Foch and Haig.

Lloyd George announces that he is through with politics. Poincare is an invalid. Of them all only Venizelos of Greece, that man of strife and storm, come now to the age of seventy, remains, as for more than thirty years, the real power behind the visible government of his native country.

One of the last, and certainly one of the most interesting of all the World War statesmen is Eleutherios Venizelos.

Most of his World War contemporaries have passed on, but Venizelos remains and remains as always—the shrewdest of politicians and the most formidable of fighters. What storm, what defeat and triumph have been crowded into his years!

WINNER OF PRAISE

Woodrow Wilson said that Venizelos was one of Europe's greatest statesmen. Long before the war, Clemenceau said he was a coming man.

When Constantine, the onetime Grecian king, was in exile, he declared Venizelos to be a "dictator worse than Lenin." Count Sforza, the Italian diplomat, remarked not long ago that he was the most beloved and the most hated man in his country.

Several attempts have been made to assassinate him. One occurred in 1920 shortly before his defeat at the polls. He was shot and seriously wounded while waiting for a train in Paris. Venizelos was first made premier in 1905 and he was premier in 1913 when King George died and Constantine succeeded him.

At the outbreak of the World War, the king, who had married the Kaiser's sister, believed Germany would win and favored neutrality. Venizelos urged support of the Allied cause, resigned and formed an army to fight the Turks and Bulgars.

His provisional government at Saloniki was recognized by the Entente and, when peace came, Greece got the Aegean Islands, all of Thrace and sovereignty over Smyrna.

The Allies forced Constantine to abdicate in 1917. His son, Alexander, who succeeded him, died in 1920 of a monkey's bite. A plebiscite in 1924 determined that the monarchy should be succeeded by a republic.

One diplomat has said that Venizelos exerted the legendary power of a charmer, a siren, during the peace conference. Wilson listened with the greatest interest to his hopes for the fulfillment of Grecian aspirations. Lloyd George and Clemenceau gave intent ears.

In detached moments, Venizelos buried himself in the Odes of Pindar. A few years later he was in exile and political eclipse. But he emerged again in 1928 to assume Grecian power.

He is a rather lean and wiry man. His gestures are suave. There is vigor in his 70 years. He wears a black silk cap over his bald head. His white beard is well-groomed.

Alertness and will-power radiate from large dark eyes behind thick lenses. They say the letters he addresses to his political foes are his best writing.

But Venizelos smiles seldom and laughs less. There are no coffee-house jokes about him. He is serious, logical, outspoken and unbending, even in danger. Once when a mob threatened, he refused to deliver an address in defense, saying:

> "If you once show the crowd that it can influence you, it will always insist upon making use of this damnable prerogative."

They say he is a man of paradoxes; that while he is Greece's greatest statesman, he is her poorest administrator; that he is vain, yet detests flattery, that greedy for power, he has been the most unselfish of dictators.

"Reverses," he once said, "are merely accidents on the road to success. In fact, a statesman can veritably thrive on defeat. He can withdraw for a time from public life and wait until people get tired of their present rulers."

He is married and lives in a mansion in Athens. But often he returns to a simple, rustic house in Crete, the island of his birth.

There he lives in a lonely way, the life of a sage, pondering the world and reading his favorite classical author, Thucydides.

Marry-Go-Round

By Helen Rowland

IN LOVE WITH SELF?

These new young Soviet writers are all "in love with themselves," according to Maxim Gorky, Russian author.

Naturally! Aren't we all? I mean when we are young and feel that we are setting the world on fire. Youth is in love with itself, just as a baby is in love with his own toes.

As a kitten chases its own tail, a young writer is intrigued and fascinated by his own brilliant ideas.

Helen Rowland

And it is good for him, no matter how hard it may be on the rest of us, who are forced to put up with his cynicism or his cockiness.

We have to be in love with ourselves or with what we fondly fancy is our genius, just at first, or we should never have the courage to start anything.

A very young man may not be in love with his charm or his beauty, like Narcissus; but he is quite apt to be infatuated with his astuteness in political matters, his keen analytical judgment of "wimmen," his taste in cravats, his line, or his Big Talent for writing. He can TELL YOU ANYTHING!

This is a good, healthy sign; and it is a tragedy, only when it lasts too long. The man who never gets over being "in love with himself," never really grows up.

The writer who lets his success go to his head and falls back in love with himself, soon goes to seed.

To produce his best in any line, a man (or woman) must feel PLEASED with himself—and yet not SATISFIED with himself, if you get what I mean. And that's about as easy as balancing yourself on a slack-wire!

Yet, whether he ever amounts to anything or not, the person I envy most in this world is the one who goes through life always "in love with himself."

That is the only love which will never fail him.

An English View of German Situation

GREAT but unfortunate people are now more than ever outside the pale of normal civilization. They cannot recover happiness and prosperity, nor true national strength and dignity, until more freedom and sanity prevail.

We shall not cease to hope and strive for their better future. Meanwhile we must distinguish sternly between the helpless mass and the blood-steeped despotism which holds them in its grip.

I.

REVOLUTIONS, LIKE SATURN, DEVOUR THEIR CHILDREN.

We have warned our readers for several weeks that something strange was brewing.

It was supposed that nothing extraordinary would happen for some months. The FUHRER and his most formidable lieutenant decided not to wait. Better make a thorough job while about it and slay on suspicion as well as on evidence.

They resolved on nothing less than a preventive massacre. Potential oppositions—left, right and center—must be beheaded. Rebellious comrades and other men reputed dangerous must be involved in a common doom.

The slaughter took place mainly on Saturday, June 30, and was completed on subsequent days. This ghastly coup was directed by Herr Hitler himself in the South and by General Goering in Prussia.

Some day the full details will make many a book. Here we must grimly epitomize. Amongst the Nazi leaders shot, three were men who counted amongst the lions of the movement.

Captain Roehm—sent on leave by the Fuhrer some weeks before—was the organizer and commander of the whole army of Brown battalions, and could boast in his day of glory that 2,500,000 men were under his orders. He had rendered priceless services to Herr Hitler.

With him perished Heines, the notorious tyrant of Silesia, and of this cruel Sadist the earth is well rid. The first of these men had lived in shameless luxury; the second was alleged to have been caught in infamous circumstances.

Their deaths were elaborately described as a service to morals. Fudge! From the beginning of the Revolution their immorality was known, flaunted and tolerated. They were finished, not for their old vices, but for their new politics making for insubordination on the Left.

The third of the more prominent leaders destroyed was young Ernst, Brownshirt commander in Berlin, where hitherto he was an idol of the streets and the admiration of women. He was supposed also to be a sworn ally of Dr. Goebbels, Minister for Public Propaganda and for various kinds of private information.

II.

"MAKSICCAR"—MURDER ALL ROUND

Amongst the strident chants in the well known Nazi songbook is one called, "I Had a Good Comrade." Who will sing it now?

The official versions gave out that Roehm and a number of Group-leaders throughout the Reich were about to meet in Munich for the specific purpose of mutiny. It had not quite come to that. It might have come to that. So they were wiped out in advance.

It was asked of the tyrant of Lucca, "Why have you killed your old friend?" Castruccio replied, "I have killed no old friend but a new enemy."

Suspected both of monarchist and democratic proclivities, Gen. von Schleicher, the former Chancellor, was officially murdered out of hand, and his devoted wife died with him, the saddest tragedy of all.

Elsewhere the same fate fell on Gregor Strasser. Though latterly estranged and dissentient, he had been for years the ablest of all Hitler's intellectuals and inspirers, and there was none to whom the Chancellor owed more.

Herr Klausener, foremost among the younger Catholic leaders, was "executed," though he held a high post in the Transport Ministry.

Father Muhler, a priest of well known courage, has perished.

One of Vice-Chancellor von Papen's chief assistants was similarly removed. The dead bodies of three public men well known throughout Bavaria have been found on the moors near Munich.

Few can doubt that nearly 300 victims, representing different opinions, have ben included in opinions, have been included in preventive massacre.

The conscience of the world has been shocked by the temper and method of this promiscuous butchery.

None of the dead had a dog's chance for his life. There was no trial. There was no hearing such as even a drum-head court-martial allows. There was no discrimination as to sentences.

In the majority of cases imprisonment would have been the proper penalty had suspicion been supported by proof. But this would have required some respect for liberty and law; some sense of the sanctity of human life.

No. There was none of the courage of mercy. There was none of the coolness of wisdom. There was only flaming brutality, worse than was shown at the burning of the Reichstag and after.

That deed of blood will stain the pages of history like St. Bartholomew or like the climax of the Reign of Terror before Robespierre came to his end.

III.

"WHITHER GERMANY?"

The universal question in the Reich and the world is "Whither Germany?"

At first the majority of the German people were flushed with optimism. The official dope led them to imagine that nothing but a cleansing process had taken place.

By such signs and whispers as no secret police can suppress, they are gradually learning more of the truth, and, as they learn it, dreariness invades their hearts.

We dare to predict that its basis will prove to be fundamentally and irreparably weakened. An imaginative spell is broken. The original Nazi dream is shattered. No new faith of that kind can replace it. "Never glad, confident morning again."

For a month the Brown Army has been dispersed and forbidden to wear uniform. The S. A. will be reorganized in some more selective and compact manner.

But never again can Herr Hitler and his former followers, any more than Dr. Goebbels and his former audiences, look at each other with the same faces or minds. Ghosts, such as henceforth walk behind the Fuhrer and his co-dictator, General Goering, are always significant factors in history.

Herr Hitler's original foundations have collapsed.

To stand at all he must stand more to the Right, which will never love him nor trust him. Far more than ever the Reichswehr, held in reserve, is the decisive factor in the entire German situation.

That it ever will come under Herr Hitler's personal control does not seem probable.

IV.

MORE FREEDOM OR SURE NEMESIS.

Bismarck's giant sagacity has been forgotten by voluble and violent pigmies unworthy to tie his shoe.

Preventive massacre solves nothing. Force is no remedy in economics.

Next Winter is likely to mean more severity with less hope. Austria is totally alienated, and even the return of the Saar is jeopardized. The religious conflicts and the Jewish question never can be settled by Nazi fanaticism nor by anything but toleration.

What is the prospect in that sense? Herr von Papen's Marburg manifesto, in favor of more freedom of conscience and criticism, precipitated events.

In spite of humiliation and outrage he remains for the moment Vice-Chancellor in name only. His appeal will survive. Had it not been for the President and the Reichswehr he would have been killed a week ago like Schleicher.

Marshal von Hindenburg is 87, and none knows what will come after him.

But even General Goering, who has now become the most powerful man in the Reich, must recognize that violence has shot its bolt.

It is hard to combine more stringent political despotism with social and religious conciliation and with more liberty of thought and word.

But this, and no other, is the task which Herr Hitler must attempt—unless in the long run he is to suffer a doom like that which he has distributed.

Whatever else may happen, peace seems more firmly assured for some years to come. In any case Germany must be left to work out her own salvation.
